WASHINGTON FACES DISORDER PERIL

312 TONS OF DYNAMITE EXPLODE

TRAIN BLOWN TO SMITHEREENS

ENORMOUS CRATER ON THE LINE

EIGHT KILLED

Kimberley, July 17.

Three hundred and twelve tons of dynamite, sufficient to destroy a small city, being transported by railway train, exploded on the line between Kimberley and the Rand gold mines to-day.

The huge consignment went up with a shattering roar which was heard for miles and shook buildings over an enormous area. Eight persons were killed.

A house nearby the scene of the disastrous explosion was wrecked and a married woman and her three children all succumbed to their injuries.

GONE IN A FLASH

Thirty-four trucks in which the dynamite was being carried were blown to smithereens. One moment the train was puffing steadily along the line. The next, it had disappeared, literally in a flash.

An enormous trench, fifteen feet deep and over three hundred yards long was blown in the permanent way, which presents a remarkable spectacle.

It was fortunate that the explosion occurred in the comparatively desolate part of the railway. Had such an enormous quantity of dynamite gone up while the train was passing through the suburbs of Kimberley, the mishap would probably have assumed the proportions of a great catastrophe. — Reuter.

THE JAPANESE IN SHANGHAI

ONLY TWO AREAS IN THEIR CONTROL

Shanghai, July 18.

American, British and Italian officials attended yesterday's ceremony which marked the further withdrawal of Japanese marines and the handing over of control to the Chinese police.

At present only two areas are still controlled by the Japanese forces; otherwise, all areas in Shanghai and Greater Shanghai are controlled by the proper authorities exactly as prior to the opening of Sino-Japanese hostilities on January 28.

The two exceptions are the Japanese Toyoda Cotton Mill and the Chinese Kung Dah Cotton Mill. — Reuter.

EXCHANGE MARKET STILL DULL

HONGKONG DOLLAR UNCHANGED

The Hongkong dollar is unchanged at 1s. 3½d. to-day, the market being very dull. There has been small inter-bank business at about 1s. 3½d. 16d.

In London, silver declined 3/16ths spot and 1/8th forward. China gold, and there was small business. The undertone is steady.

New York reports silver down 1/8th, with the market dull.

BLOODSHED IN GERMANY

Berlin, July 17.

As the date of the general election approaches, armed clashes between the two most belligerent of the political parties, the Communists and the Fascists (Hitlerites) became increasingly serious.

Fighting occurred in many places in Germany to-day and in the course of grave street fighting, eleven persons were killed and eighty-three injured. — Reuter.

QUACK DENTIST MENACE

PROTECTION NEED URGED

Sir,—With reference to your editorial of the 16th instant regarding the local quack "dentists," I agree with you that it is time the authorities started a campaign with a view to ridding the Colony of these quacks. They took good care to raise the dental registration fee one hundred per cent. from the 1st January, 1932.

It is a very serious matter, and it is a disgrace to allow these quacks to carry on as they are doing in a British Crown Colony. I hope at least one of the Unofficial members of the Legislative Council will take up this subject with the authorities.

The public should be grateful to you for taking up this matter in your paper. These quacks are using different poisons, when they don't know anything about materia medica, let alone dental operations, etc. I hope the authorities will wake up to the fact that they have a duty to perform, and the public to protect. — Yours, etc., COMMUNE BONDUM.

TOO YOUNG AT FORTY-FIVE!

YET CIVIL SERVANTS RETIRE AT 50

Giving her age as 45, a Chinese woman was charged before Mr. Fraser, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, with hawking vegetables without a licence.

His Worship:—Is she too young to have a licence? Sergeant Madgwick (in charge of Hawker Department):—Yes, your Worship. She is too young to get a hawker's licence.

His Worship:—And Government servants retire at the age of 50! The woman was fined $4 or four days.

Provided with sound synchronization, "Ben Hur," shown in its original silent form a few years ago, has come back to the Queen's Theatre with a new interest for those who have seen and admired the massive and spectacular settings and quick drama of the production. Roman Navarro heads a large cast, his acting being all that could be desired. The picture is showing again to-day and tomorrow.

WEEK-END MOTOR MISHAPS

AUSTIN SEVEN OVER EMBANKMENT

A fortunate escape from injury when his Austin Seven ran off the roadway and overturned at Castle Peak yesterday was the experience of Mr. H. Teale, who had as passengers his wife and daughter.

Mr. Teale was driving his car to the Caterina Beach near the Main Castle Peak beach, when the outside wheels ran over the edge of the road, causing the car to overturn. Fortunately Mr. Teale was able to extricate himself and his family without injuries. Mrs. Teale, however, suffered somewhat from shock.

PARKED IN PADDY FIELD

An accident which might easily have had serious consequences befel Mr. H. A. Rodgers, of the Hongkong Land Investment and Agency Co., last night as he was returning from Sheung Shui to Taipo.

Mr. Rodgers was driving his car, No. 2080, towards his residence, the "Lookout" at Taipo. As he was approaching the bridge at Taipo Market at about midnight, the vehicle skidded and ran off the road into the paddy field. Fortunately it came to rest in an upright position and the driver was not in any way injured.

LAD KNOCKED DOWN

Mr. T. P. Rolland, wireless operator of the P.W.D., residing at 14, Conduit Road, knocked down a Chinese boy whilst driving private motor car No. 3295 in Causeway Road at about 6.30 p.m., near Castle Road.

The accident occurred in front of Kom Tong Hall where the lad, Kwong Shing, aged 14, of 64, Bridges Street, attempted to cross the road in front of the car. He received injuries to his face and right leg and was taken to the Government Civil Hospital where he was detained, although his injuries were not of a serious nature.

COLLISION WITH TAXI

A collision between a private car and a taxi in Jackson Street, near the Hongkong Club, has been reported to the police by Mr. L. Glendenning, of East Point Terrace.

Mr. Glendenning was driving car No. 2386 along Chater Road at 11.45 p.m. last night and when crossing Jackson Road a taxi collided with the rear of his car, causing damage to the rear mudguard and the bumper. Slight damage was caused to the front mudguard and bumper of the taxi.

MOTOR-CYCLE MISHAP

Whilst driving a motor cycle along the roadway leading to Lai-chikok Beach, Mr. W. H. Floyd, a prison warder, knocked down a small Chinese girl who received minor injuries to the left side of her face.

According to a report which was subsequently made to the police, the girl, Tse Nai, aged five years, of 126, Shanghai Street, ran across the road as the cycle was approaching about 6 o'clock yesterday. She was knocked down and later taken to hospital, but was not detained.

CITY ACCIDENT

Slight injuries were received by Li Fuk, aged 50, of no fixed abode when he was knocked down by a motor lorry in Connaught Road Central yesterday. The victim received a cut over the left eye but refused to go to hospital for treatment.

As the cholera epidemic is fast abating in Canton, and the need for the full use of the Municipal Hospital for such cases is no longer deemed necessary, the management of the

WHITE HOUSE THREATENED

POLICE CORDON ON GUARD

Washington, July 17.

Grave troubles appear to be in store in Washington in consequence of the high feeling among unemployed ex-Servicemen at the refusal of the administration to consent to the payment of the war bonuses.

Every precaution is being taken against disturbances, the White House being strongly guarded.

The gates of the White House, the Presidential residence, have been locked and the whole neighbourhood has been isolated by the throwing out of a police cordon, to guard it against possible outbreaks.

Thousands of unemployed and ex-Servicemen are in Washington to-day, most of them from Oregon and California. Last week, they marched to the Capitol carrying bed-rolls and announced their intention of camping on the Capitol grounds until the Bonus Bill had been passed, or until Congress adjourned.

They were cleared away by the police and fortunately no serious incident occurred.

MEN INDIGNANT

To-day, however, the authorities have reason to fear the possibility of outbreaks so incensed are the unemployed and ex-Servicemen at the adjournment of Congress without passing legislation for the cashing of the war bonuses. — Reuter.

NEW ANTI-BANDIT SCHEME

PEOPLE MAKE GOOD THE LOSSES

Wuchow, July 15.

The military authorities of North-Western Kwangsi have enforced a ruling which is said to be very effective in bandit suppression. When there is a robbery in a certain section of the district under the supervision of these officials, a fine equivalent to the amount stolen in money and property is levied on the people of the section under question. This amount is collected by the military and returned to the person who reported the loss. This ruling was recently put into practice and the amount of the money stolen by a band of brigands was returned to the party robbed.

In an attempt to make the Kwangsi Army more efficient, some divisions have put into effect very strenuous measures in regard to the behaviour of soldiers. Opium smoking, gambling, and visiting brothels are punishable by death. If billeted in private homes, the soldiers have to erect their bedboards in the front room of the house and are not permitted to go beyond the front room of the home or interfere with the home life of the family billeting the soldiers. — Our Own Correspondent.

DEATH OF LADY BEATTY

WIFE OF FAMOUS ADMIRAL

London, July 17.

The death occurred to-day of Countess Beatty, the wife of Admiral of the Fleet Earl Beatty, commander-in-chief of the Grand Fleet in the latter part of the Great War.

Countess Beatty was the oldest daughter of the Chicago millionaire, Marshall Field, Junr., and she married Earl Beatty in 1901 when he held the rank of Commander in the Navy. — Reuter.

FRACTURE OF BASE OF SKULL

(Router's Special Service).

Los Angeles, July 17.

Aimee Semple McPherson, now Mrs. David Hutton, who is suffering from a fracture of the base of the skull, is in a critical precarious condition, according to the report of her doctors.

Mrs. Hutton, who is world-famous as Aimee McPherson, the evangelist, collapsed last week on learning that her husband had been ordered to pay $1,000 damages in a breach of promise suit brought by a pretty nurse.

The nurse alleged that Hutton proposed to her a brief while before he met and married Mrs. McPherson.

HEALTH UNDERMINED

In swooning upon hearing the verdict in the case, Mrs. Hutton's head struck the stone floor.

It was at first thought that she was suffering from concussion, but it was later discovered that the skull had been fractured. The fight for her life has been rendered more difficult by her state of health.

It is stated that her constitution had been undermined by the publication of a book by one of her former assistants, alleging irregularities in the conduct of the charities of her Angelus Temple, under the title: "Aimee, Gospel Gold-digger."

POPULAR LADY LEAVES

MRS. TAYLOR SAILS FOR HOME

An old and respected resident in the person of Mrs. A. M. Taylor, wife of senior Sanitary Inspector A. K. Taylor, accompanied by her youngest son Douglas and her daughter Mary, left the Colony on Saturday by the P. and O. Rajputana.

For the past three years, Mrs. Taylor has been in poor health and her medical adviser has now ordered a complete change. That she will have a speedy recovery to good health will be the wish of her many friends.

For many years Mrs. Taylor has been employed as housekeeper at the Hongkong Hotel where she has done yeoman service in reorganising the housekeeping department. She also had charge of the department at Repulse Bay and the Peninsula Hotel. At the latter place she took over and thoroughly organised the department on its opening a few years ago.

Being endowed with marked organising ability, exceptional energy and a genial disposition, Mrs. Taylor enjoyed the full confidence of the management, the respect of the guests and the loyal co-operation of the whole staff.

During the war Mrs. Taylor, who is a highly qualified hospital sister, performed valuable services to the Colony on the Government Civil Hospital staff. Her professional services were also greatly in demand by private medical practitioners.

Washington's "Bonus City," in a comprehensive general view. Here, huddled among their shacks, crude mess tables and field kitchens, the thousands of war veterans "dug in," determined they said to remain until Congress pays their service compensation certificates.

A modern-day Mecca for increasing legions of destitute ex-service men, "Bonus City" is seen in this striking aerial picture to have grown to vast proportions on its site on the outskirts of Washington. Note how a semblance of military order was achieved in setting up the shacks in regular rows.

MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Susan Carey, 20 and beautiful, has become engaged to marry Ernest Heath, her former employer. She is secretly in love with Bob Dunbar, who is said to have "an understanding" with Denise Ackroyd, a girl of his own set. Heath's wife has just secured a Reno divorce. Susan's chief motive in promising to marry Heath is the desire to provide for the future of her Aunt Jenks, who has cared for her since childhood. Her aunt is ill now and Heath has arranged to send her south. Susan is staying with the Millons, old friends. Ben Lampman, an old sailor, shoots at Heath one night in a fit of jealousy, injuring him slightly. Lampman then turns the gun on himself. After several days of illness the doctor announces that Lampman will recover. Heath takes Susan to the theatre.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

The curtain had risen on the first act when Susan and Ernest Heath drifted down the aisle of the theatre. More than one head turned to look at the tall girl in the regally simple wrap of brown

fur. There were one or two whispers as Heath was recognised. He had forgotten his original caution and desire to avoid publicity in his eagerness to take Susan about. Although impatient for the marriage to take place he had agreed to wait for her aunt's return.

Now, conscious of the craned necks and the whispers, he felt only a glow of pride. The girl was so beautiful. She had a look of race about her.

Susan leaned forward absorbed in the play, and the man watched her with interest. It was not until the curtain dropped again and the lights came on that Susan drew a deep breath and returned to reality.

"You like it?"
"Oh, so much!" The colour came up in her cheeks and her eyes were starry. "Don't you?"

"Well, it's all right, only all British comedies sound alike."
"They may to you but I've never seen one before and I think it's wonderful," she confided with a happy little laugh.

Susan loosened her wrap and leaned back, looking about her for the first time. As by a magnet her gaze was drawn to a little group in the box just to the left. Irresistibly her eyes clung to the three people balancing on the little gilt chairs. Surely she knew that girl in black, with her bright hair combed demurely back from a brow of camellia whiteness. Susan's heart plunged as she realized the identity of the fair-haired young man whose head was turned away from her. Try as she might, she could not take her eyes away.

As though impelled by Susan's gaze the man turned and stared at her. For the fraction of an instant something quivered between them. Then the girl inclined her head with dignity and looked swiftly away. Her pulses were racing now. This was just as she had dreamed.

"Someone you know?" Heath asked curiously, noting the quality of her bow.

"Susan never knew how she answered him. She was fighting desperately for control. All her hard won defences seemed shattered by this encounter."

Meantime, in the box another little drama was being enacted. The bright haired girl in black had followed the direction of Bob Dunbar's glance and had seen him flush. She laughed coolly.

"Oh—ho, your little friend turns up again!" she said. "Who's that with her?" Denise leaned forward, frankly staring. At the glimpse of Heath's aristocratic profile she whistled softly. "As I live and breathe," she muttered, "she's bagged Old Prosperity himself!" She saw Bob's spine stiffen and returned with zest to the attack. "Look what she's wearing," she said enjoying herself thoroughly now. "Sabine! Mother said when she was in Madame Elsa's the other day the talk was that old Heath had a girl around town now."

Fiercely Bob interrupted her. "Don't be a fool," he said. "You know Susan Carey isn't that kind."

Denise shrugged. "You know more about her than I do, Smarty." She turned her attention to the other member of the party, a youth who looked like a professional tango dancer.

The dark youth said something that made Denise laugh immoderately just as the curtain rose again. So far as Susan was concerned, that second act was a muddle. People babbled in high British voices of unimportant nothings, and slim, sophisticated girls lounged in, strewing epigrams about.

In her heart the old, dull pain throbbed again and yet she was not sorry she had seen Bob. She had been living, she felt, for this hour. Her whole being was keyed up to the possibility of seeing again that beloved face. She would suffer for it but that was unimportant.

During the second interval Susan determinedly kept her eyes away from the box, but just as the lights went off, quite against her will, her eyes flashed in that direction. The box was empty. They had gone. The world suddenly went grey. What she had expected she scarcely knew. Perhaps she had hoped against hope that as the well-dressed throngs milled out into the foyer her

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Charles Farrell wants to go to sea. No, don't get excited. He doesn't intend to desert the screen, to give up bringing such characterizations as "Chico" and "Fazil" into the world, and his present impersonation, "John Merriell" in "Heartbreak," Fox romance which will be the attraction at the King's Theatre, commencing next Wednesday. He wants to go to sea in a picture. Furthermore he wants the locale of the drama to be that of the New England coast, preferably that of Onset Bay, Mass., scene of his boyhood.

Farrell is very much interested in the stories of the old seafarers who made the words New England the hall-mark of maritime adventure wherever a coast touched the seven seas. He can't conquer this propensity. It's in his blood. The sea fascinates him.

He wants to impersonate some of the Yankee letter-of-marque men who, in their "binkies", little sailing vessels no bigger than a whale boat, with a pop gun of a brass cannon at either end, paralyzed British commerce in 1812. He longs to act the skipper of one of these long snaky black clipper ships that broke speed records everywhere in the golden age of sail, or a whaling captain off on a two year cruise for sperm, out of New Bedford.

Starred in "Heartbreak", Farrell plays just as virile and American type as any above described. Though not a sailor, he gets overseas. He is an attaché at the American Embassy in Vienna when the war smashes his romance with an Austrian girl played by bewitching Madge Evans, co-starred in the feminine lead. In spite of separation and misunderstanding, their love has a quenchless flame that can survive tragedy and heartbreak and they are brought together again after a climax of terrific intensity.

Hardie Albright, Paul Cavanagh and John Arledge are also featured players and the production was under the direction of Alfred Werker.

"Age For Love"
The romance and drama of this ultra-modern age, the marriage problems which all couples encounter, are beautifully and poignantly portrayed in "The Age For Love" which is showing at the Central Theatre at 5.15 and 9.30 p.m. to-day.

Here is a modern picture—undoubtedly the first of its kind— which truly portrays, and entertainingly too, the problems which confronts every modern, intelligent and cultured person. And it is the kind of entertainment the entire family will enjoy—you will laugh, you will cry, and you will sympathize with these true-to-life characters, who move gracefully across the screen amid settings, picturesque, colourful and realistic.

"The Age For Love", among its other detectable features, brings back to the screen, after more than a year's absence, the superlatively beautiful Billie Dove. It is a new Dove you see in this picture—a girl more amazingly beautiful than ever, if that is possible—but in addition, a new histrionic personality, dynamic with brilliance, polish and sophistication. It is without doubt Miss Dove's finest performance.

A new leading man, Charles Starrett, made a bid for fame in this picture. His portrayal of the straightforward, handsome, slightly old-fashioned young business man is a gem of acting—and women want to see more of him.

"The Age For Love" is based on the most popular novel by Ernest Pascal, who adapted his own story for the screen with the aid of Robert Sherwood who is the famous motion picture critic and playwright.

Others of the cast who figured prominently in the story are Lois Wilson, Mary Duncan, Edward Horton, Adrian Morris, Betty Ross, Charles, Vivian Oakland, Charles Sellen and Jean Standing.

Making Whoopee in "Honky Tonk".
When Sophie Tucker comes out into the floor of the great New York night club in "Honky Tonk", the latest Warner Bros. talking, singing Vitaphone production, which comes to the Queen's Theatre on Wednesday in conjunction with Long Tack Sam's act on the stage and sings her torrid ditties, she doesn't need to act.

She can be perfectly natural, for she has filled this self-same role in real life on countless nights. Many years of her life have been spent as an entertainer in night clubs—mistress of ceremonies, singer of songs, and general life-of-the-party.

Much of the action of "Honky Tonk" takes place in the Honky Tonk Cafe, with Sophie—capering chorus girls—throats of gay merry-makers, toy balloons, serpentine and clackers, hectic atmosphere of whoopee—and Sophie!

The production was directed by Lloyd Bacon, and the cast includes George Duryea, Lila Lee, Audrey Ferris, Mahlon Hamilton and John T. Murray.

The illustration depicted above is an accurately drawn chart showing at a glance the unique and yet steady and sound growth of our rent collecting department during the last five years. The actual figures showing the volume of business done and rentals collected on foreign houses during that period are 1927—508, 1928—675, 1929—2548, 1930—3203, 1931—4443.

This most satisfactory increase in the volume of business handled is the natural result of the policy we have adopted in every phase of our activities. That this policy has met with the approval of our clients is reflected not only in the increase in the volume of business handled by our foreign houses rent collections, but to an even greater extent in the department's handling the affairs of Chinese houses-rent collections.

The collection of rentals often carries with it the management of estates, and this intimate relationship with landlords makes The China Realty Company the logical place for property owners to come when they need help in the financing of improvements to their properties, and sound advice in the management, sale, or buying of properties and estates.

Another phase of our activities has to do with the investing public, that is, the holders of our 8% debentures on which the interest is payable semi annually. We believe that those who furnish the capital on which the company is enabled to do increased business should participate in the profits—the most successful concerns of the future will be those who recognize this principle—that even banks will allocate to depositors a part of profits earned on their money over and above current rates of interest. As our balance sheets show quite plainly, the proceeds from the sale of our debentures is not used for the purchase of real estate, AS WE ARE NOT SPECULATORS, but for investment in first class mortgages, amply secured not only by the value of the land pledged as security but as a further security the fact that the debentures constitute a first claim on the total assets of the company. An analysis of the figures involved shows that every debenture has behind it assets equal to three times its value.

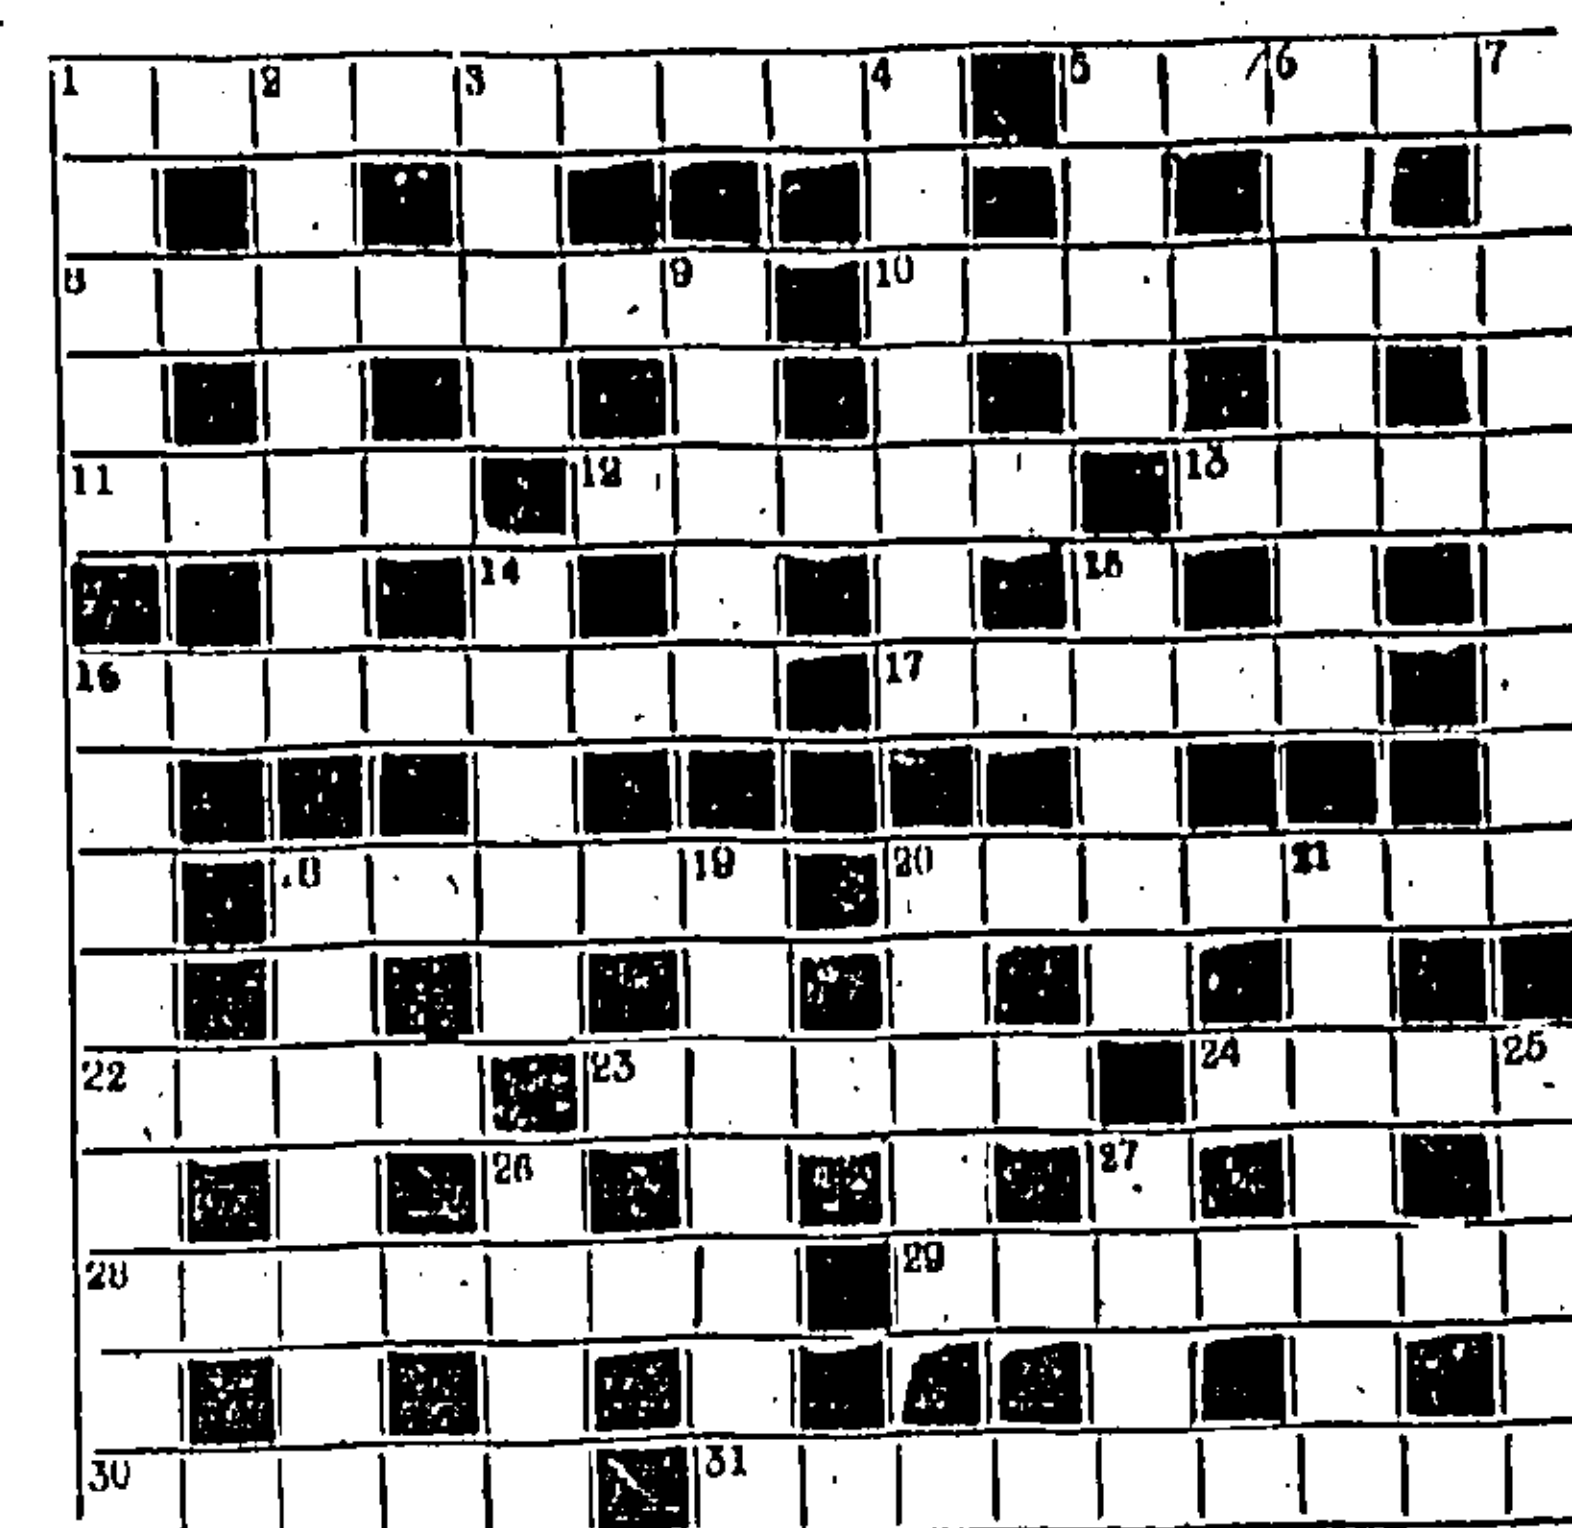

Were it not for the position of confidence gained through the consistent policy to which we have adhered, and the volume of unsolicited business which has come as a result, we could not thus complete our service by offering the man who wishes to invest in debentures an opportunity to share with us in the prosperity of our business by paying debenture interest of 8% and remember, 8% VERSUS 6% MEANS ONE THIRD MORE INCOME!

TAI TUNG COLLEGE PRIZE GIVING.

MADAME TSAI TING-KAI DISTRIBUTES AWARDS

Among those on the platform were the Headmaster, Mr. H. C. Ching, B.A., Mr. Ma Man-fai and several members of the tutorial staff of the College.

The School report was as follows: "The total number of students enrolled during 1931 was 325 as against 256 in 1930 and 110 in 1929. Every year an increasing number of students came to apply for admission, but owing to the limited space available we were compelled to refuse many of them. We took care to keep our entrance examination very strict as many students came with the intention of getting into a higher class than they were fit for.

"Our staff consisted of five University graduates, three undergraduates, and six other experienced teachers making a total of 14. Dr. K. F. Woo was kind enough to be our medical adviser. "Very few changes took place during the year. The only changes were that Mr. H. Wilson left in March and Mr. Yeoh Tak-ee, graduate of the Hongkong University, joined us in September. Judging from the results of the examinations, the work may be said to be quite satisfactory.

class 1 and class 2 were substituted by the University Matriculation and Junior local Examinations respectively. In November, 1931, the Matriculation Examination and of these 2 were awarded Matriculation Certificates. 22 students from class 2 sat for the Junior Local Examination and of these four passed, and Ho Yue-lau obtained distinction in Arithmetic. "I wish here to express my sincerest thanks to Madame Tsai Ting-kai who has done us a great honour by consenting to come to distribute the prizes for us this morning, to those who have generously given us books or other useful articles for prizes, to our friends who have contributed to the items of our concert, to the management of King's Theatre for the kind permission to use their premises, and to the parents and guardians of students for their presence and interested attention. After the distribution of prizes by Madame Tsai, Mr. Ma Man-fai addressed the gathering in Cantonese.

COMING GERMAN ELECTION

Public attention has been so much centred on the Lausanne Conference of late that the im-
minence of the General Election,
which takes place in Germany on July 31st, has been largely overlooked. The present Chancellor, Herr von Papen, is regarded by competent German observers to be
a stop-gap, in which connexion it is worth noting that his Cabinet
has been officially described as a transitional Ministry of non-party experts whose task is to steer
the country past the coming election. For the moment, the reactionaries are in power, but it remains to be seen what will happen
when the voice of the nation
makes itself heard. There is undoubtedly a move in certain quarters for the restoration of the Monarchy, so much so, indeed,
that the new Minister of the Interior proclaimed in a speech recently that a Monarchy was the
most suitable form of government
for a country in Germany's position.

Looking at the situation generally, there is no doubt that the forces of reaction have been helped by the breach between the Social Democrat and Communist leaders. However, the Social Democrats appear determined to make a big fight in the coming election, and they are still a factor to be reckoned with. The internal situation is most complicated. In the States, as in the Reich, no party has a majority
which makes majority government possible; in the States the old Ministers have mostly carried on as a so-called "business government." This has very naturally caused great indignation
among the Nazis in Prussia, who have become by far the largest
party in the Prussian Landtag.
For some time it has been on the
cards that a Reich Commissioner
would therefore be appointed by the Central Government to rule Prussia. Since it is clear that Hitler has an understanding with the new Government, by which he gives them general support in return for the promise of a "free hand in the administration of Prussia (and here the importance of the control of the police system

of Prussia can never be exaggerated), the liveliest apprehension is aroused. Meanwhile,
the recent appointment of the von Papen Government has aroused anxiety in the South. In Bavaria
the Catholic People's Party is just stronger than the Nazis, and
there has been an angry outcry—
why should Bavarians endure the dictation of East Prussian landowners? The interview recently in Berlin between the President and the Chancellor on the one hand, and the Premiers of Bavaria, Baden and Wurttemberg
on the other did not clear the air.
Obviously the principle of Reich
Commissioners, and the liberation
of the Storm Detachments, remained distasteful to the visitors.

At the moment, nothing definite
can be foreseen. The German Government can with difficulty be termed either popular or constitutional; its members represent,
though not specifically, the Nationalist party, whose failure
in recent elections has been striking. Yet by posing as saviours of
the Fatherland Herr von Papen
and his colleagues are momentarily riding the Nazi flood, while receiving the support of the industrial magnates whom they do not seem to have bothered to consult. Though Hitler is on cordial terms with Big Business, it is indisputable that his movement is basically anti-capitalist; his most able spokesman, Gregor Strasser,
represents an important and interesting Left wing in the Party,
and it remains to be seen
whether a Nazi split can be indefinitely postponed. There are all manner of possibilities in the situation. The voting on July 31st may well have a tremendous influence not only on German politics but on those of Europe as well.

The Irish Problem.

The dispute between the Irish Government and Whitehall already contained elements so dis-
quieting that the abject failure
of Mr. Norton's compromise intervention could scarcely make matters worse. It is none the less deplorable. The satisfaction widely expressed both in England
and Ireland when it became known that Mr. Ramsay Mac-Donald's invitation to Mr. de Valera had been accepted, revealed
the sincere desire of both countries to end an unseemly and unnecessary squabble. The abandonment of all effort to reach a settlement after a talk lasting
three hours exposed irrespon-
sibility unmitigated by the fact,
now apparent, that both parties
went into the conference with
the impression that the other was prepared to depart from his former stand. Mr. Ramsay Mac-Donald should have known Mr. de Valera better. The Irish leader should have been aware that the Englishman is never more difficult to move than when he has assumed an air of sanctimonious
righteousness and rectitude. As
in every stage of the development
of the unhappy relations now subsisting between England and the Irish Free State, both sides are almost equally to blame. British politicians, not one of whom appears to have the haziest knowledge of Irish psychology, thought they could frighten Ireland into submission by threats of economic pressure, and succeeding only in stirring passions in Ireland which
most people thought were latent
if not dead, felt compelled to act
upon the threat when it failed of
its purpose, simply and solely for
the preservation of their dignity.
And the serious aspect of the
land annuities issue might easily
have been avoided had not the old Imperialism raced in to defend
the sanctity of the Oath, when it
did not warrant the slightest fuss.
The point of substance was whether the Free State intended to stand loyally by its undertaking to remain within the British Commonwealth of Nations. The Oath is merely a form of words
of no particular importance. If
Mr. de Valera, stubborn and suspicious, chose the wrong
method of its removal, an ounce of tact could have turned it into

DAY BY DAY

MOST PEOPLE IN THEIR BLINDNESS
DO NOT SEE THE INFINITE DIFFER-ENCE BETWEEN DIGNITY AND REAL GREATNESS. THEY MISTAKE OR CONFUSE DIGNITY WITH REAL GREATNESS OF MIND, HEART AND SOUL.

During a fight between two boatmen
at the Mongkok Ferry Wharf yesterday, one of the men received a cut over the forehead and was later taken to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

Mr. Kinnard, an overseer of the Public Works Department, has reported to the police the theft of six lengths of one-inch zinc piping from the lower dam at Aberdeen on Saturday morning.

A reminder is given that a Service
men's dance will be held on the tennis courts of the European
Y.M.C.A., Kowloon, this evening.
Should the weather prove inclement, dancing will take place in the concert hall.

Whilst preparing a charge of dynamite at a quarry near Cremor Street, Talkoktsui, yesterday a foreman of the Fu Long firm of contractors received severe injuries when the charge exploded unexpectedly. He was taken to the Kowloon Hospital
in a serious condition.

Three boatpeople were charged before the Hon. Comdr. Ho, at the Marine Court this morning, with having caused obstruction at the Mongkok Ferry Wharf by mooring their boats within 35 feet of the wharf. They admitted the offence and were each $10, or one week's
imprisonment.

In connexion with a report made
to the police on Saturday morning
by a Chinese married woman of Hanchow who stated that she had been held up and robbed in Chatham Road, outside Holt's Wharf, it has now been ascertained that the report was false. The woman has now admitted to the police that there had been no hold-up and that she had hidden the money, which she had collected from Holt's Wharf on behalf
of her husband, to avoid her creditors.

The Villa Rose mystery, one of the cleverest of A. E. W. Mason's Hannustories, is the subject of the feature film at the King's Theatre and provides excellent entertainment. The identity of the murderer is adroitly concealed without resort to red-
herrings, for which reason the film
will give a greater measure of enjoyment to those who have not had the pleasure of reading the book. Austin Trevor plays the part of Hannu with
his usual polish and conviction, in a double sense, while Richard Cooper
fills the role of the tyro detective, providing humorous relief along
lines perhaps a trifle libellous to the original Ricardo, but nevertheless satisfying.

right channels. Reprisals have served merely to concentrate behind Mr. de Valera a strength
which would not have been more than half-heartedly applied in
more carefully chosen circumstances. Ireland now purposes a tariff war with Britain and
genuine Irish loyalty to the Commonwealth is indefinitely postponed.

"I'm beginning to think maybe we should have let her marry that Mr. Truesdale."

OUR HECTIC HERITAGE BY "THIRTY"

"Let us eat, drink, and be merry
—for to-morrow we shall be out of a job!"

THAT, I think, represents the attitude of most of us who can afford it and who are not already tramping the streets looking for a chance to grind out a livelihood. Our elders can inspire us with no better objective, for the reasons I have tried to explain in previous articles.

Even if civilisation is crumbling,
what is the use of being depressed
about it? It has not given such advantages that we shall miss it as much as our elders. And it is not as if there were anything we could do about it in the meanwhile. Even if we got ourselves elected to Parliament, we realise that the Party Whips believe that little
M.P.'s should be seen and not heard. Though elderly politicians are helpless, their dignity must be preserved at all costs, and the younger men "kept in their place."

I suggested to a Minister the other day that it might be helpful
to let the younger members be heard
more frequently, if only to "blow
off steam." He was horrified.
"The front benchers," he assured
me with the pontifical air of one clenching an argument, "could not like it!" I have no doubt that he sincerely believes that the collapse
of civilisation will be postponed because "the front benchers would
not like it."

We regard politics, then, as a farce. With every prospect of collapse there is no point in taking
what our fathers called "a career"
at all seriously and, in any case,
why exert oneself to make money to pay to the politicians to buy votes
with?

The shallow squabbles of the Churches about dogma and ritual
do not satisfy any deep spiritual
urge or curiosity we may have.
Even the pleasant counter-attraction of scientific theories that the Universe is a bursting example of pure mathematics, and that the inmates of the local zoo are our distant cousins, does not inspire us to
any enthusiastic conceptions of life.
Each day brings fresh evidence
that theorists of every kind have
been hopelessly wrong, so there is little inducement to study. Can we
be blamed, then, for making the most of life while we can and for
not taking it, our elders, or ourselves, too seriously?

Besides, our outlook compels us
to regard the problems that harass
our elders from a different and
more practical angle.

Take, for example, the great problem of over-production—the
phenomenon of starvation in the midst of plenty. From this it is clear to us that the whole distributive mechanism of world commerce is founded on entirely false principles. We have a shrewd suspicion where the fault lies, but
all that matters to us is the question of whether it can be remedied.
And we see at once that the only people who might be able to remedy the defect are those who
make their living out of it—and that the cure would entail a drastic reduction in their incomes. Human nature being what it is, we know that they will let disaster

overtake them rather than do anything about it.

So why should we waste time and breath, like the economists, with
their almost daily invention of new jargon and incantations to explain
the curious crumbling in the feet
of their idol, International Finance?

We know the idol has feet of clay and, to be given new feet, will have to be taken down for repairs,
with a considerable loss of prestige
and temple revenues. We know
the idol and its worshippers would rather perish miserably than have
that happen. Meanwhile, why should we get hot and bothered?

Take another great problem of
the day—War Debts—which dis-closes to us one of the peculiar de-lusions of the economist in the matter of wealth and the even more peculiar delusions of the statesman
in the matter of ethics.

To us it is clear that the wealth
represented by War Debts ceased
to exist almost immediately after it was created. It was blown out of existence, was worn out, or merely disappeared. Yet this wealth is regarded in the same light as capital sunk in some tangible,
existing, earning enterprise, like a railway or a great liner. But in six years' time conversion loans
apart, we shall have paid for it
twice over. Even the sound business principle of allowance for depreciation was not applied to War Debts.

Whatever one's theories of the nature of wealth, it is obvious that
one cannot regard wealth that still exists in the same light as wealth
that has ceased to exist. Though it may be argued that the present
post-war state of the world is an asset, there is clearly some
economic fallacy here, which ought to have been foreseen.

But there is also an ethical fallacy—the treatment of wealth
as something more valuable than life. The State did not hesitate to ask the manhood of the nation to
give its life freely and without condition. But wealth was treated as a more valuable commodity and
only borrowed at 5 per cent. interest
—a curious reflection on the outlook
of our much-vaunted civilisation.

On Armistice Day the State
mourns the vanished dead. The rest of the year it pays interest on vanished wealth. If Socialists are tempted to regard this as an argument for Socialism, let it always
be remembered that Socialist munition-workers, who were selling
their labour, never hesitated to demand wages far higher than those
of the fighting men who were merely giving their lives.

If it is the official view of civilisation that death is of less account
than dividends, the only possible
deduction that we can make is that there is not much point in living,
because it is clear that our chances
of wealth for the remainder of our lives are negligible. If that is not
the official view of civilisation, why
do the leaders of civilisation go on acting as if it were, at the same
time chanting smug phrases about
the horrors of war, and the "sanctity
of human life"?

Naturally, we cannot take them,
or their outlook, at all seriously.
Confronted with a world capable
of entertaining what we consider
such illogical misconceptions and of tolerating for so long such colossal structural defects—a world run by
men who are so patently out of
their depth and blind to the faults
of the machine they control—we
see little chance of their being able to effect running repairs. Even if they knew how to do that, they would have to stop the machine to free its seized bearings. But, of course, they have allowed things to
go too far.

The only reply to our question
as to what they propose to do is a vague theory that, although they do not know what is really wrong with
it, the machine will right itself
without any effort on their part except for such gentle words of encouragement as they may offer at
the Lausanne and other conferences.

A machine that will eliminate its
own structural defects and correct
the fallacies of its designers, without those in charge of it being equipped with either, or being prepared to take it to pieces and make drastic alterations, is a phenomenon outside our experience, beyond our understanding. We may be forgiven, therefore, for replying to these optimistic travellers' tales of our elders that "there ain't no such animal."

Meanwhile, till they produce the
phenomenon to rebut our incredulity, there is nothing for us to do except to remain cheerful.

Next the teeth loosen in their sockets and what may happen then, worst of all, the teeth drop out, or have to be pulled out!

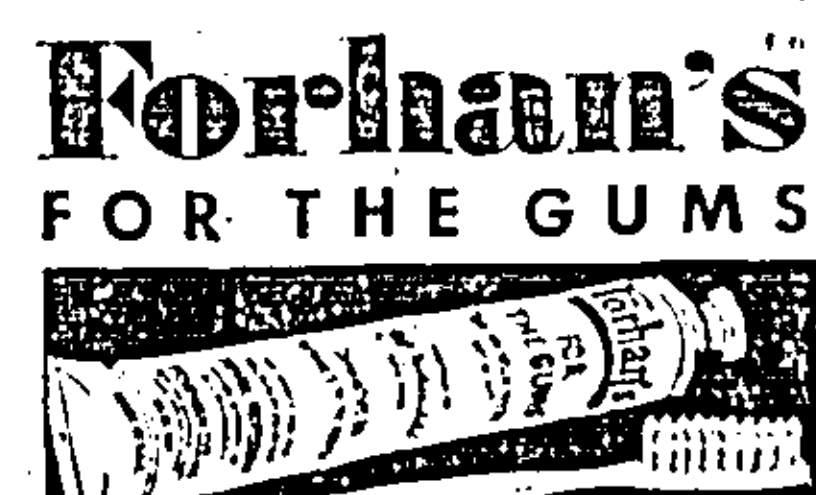

The price you pay for neglect, is the dreaded disease, pyorrhea, and all of its attending ills.

SHANGHAI TENNIS

NEW CHINESE DOUBLES
CHAMPIONS

Shanghai, July 12.

The final of the Chinese open tennis doubles championship took place yesterday afternoon at the China National Amateur Athletic Federation. C. D. Kuo and Y. Y. Kuo, winners of the 1931 title, were dethroned by two youthful college players, D. K. Yui and Guy Chen, who won in straight sets at 7-5, 6-0 and 6-3. Yui was the 1930 Shanghai junior champion and is at present a student at the University of Shanghai, while Chen reached the final of last year's hard-court tournament at the French Club and was beaten by W. A. H. Duff. He is now studying at St. John's University. Both are pupils of Gordon Lum, who officiated at yesterday's final.

EX-CHAMPIONS START WELL.

The ex-champions started off in fine form and took the first two games before Yui and Chen could get set. The latter pair won the third game, but still lagged behind until the ninth, when they reeled off four games in succession to win the opening set at 7-5. In the second set, play was very one-sided, as Yui and Chen ran away with without conceding a single game. In the third set the losers improved, but they lacked the ability to win, giving the set to their conquerors at 6-3.

The winning couple played a sound game with strong services and unbreakable net play. They hune to the net like leeches and broke their opponents' teamwork to pieces. The two Kuos were all at sea, not knowing what to do. Their shots mostly went straight to the winners' rackets, and only on rare occasions could they win with accurate passing shots.

AMERICA CLAIMS NEW TITLE

New York, July 11.

Margaret Hoffman, of Pennsylvania, covered yesterday, 200 yards distance by breast stroke in 2 minutes 55.45 seconds, thus claiming a new world swimming record.

British Champion to Retire

London, July 11.

Miss Ethel Wilson, the English lady golf champion, is retiring from competitive golf after her visit to the United States in the autumn in a final attempt to win the American Women's Open.

Miss Wilson is Great Britain's foremost player. She is only 22 years of age. It is a remarkable age to contemplate a retirement from the game in which she is so distinctive a star. Just now there seems to be rather a dearth of brilliant young women golfers and it seems a thousand pities that the benefit of Miss Wilson's years of studious application to the game should be lost.

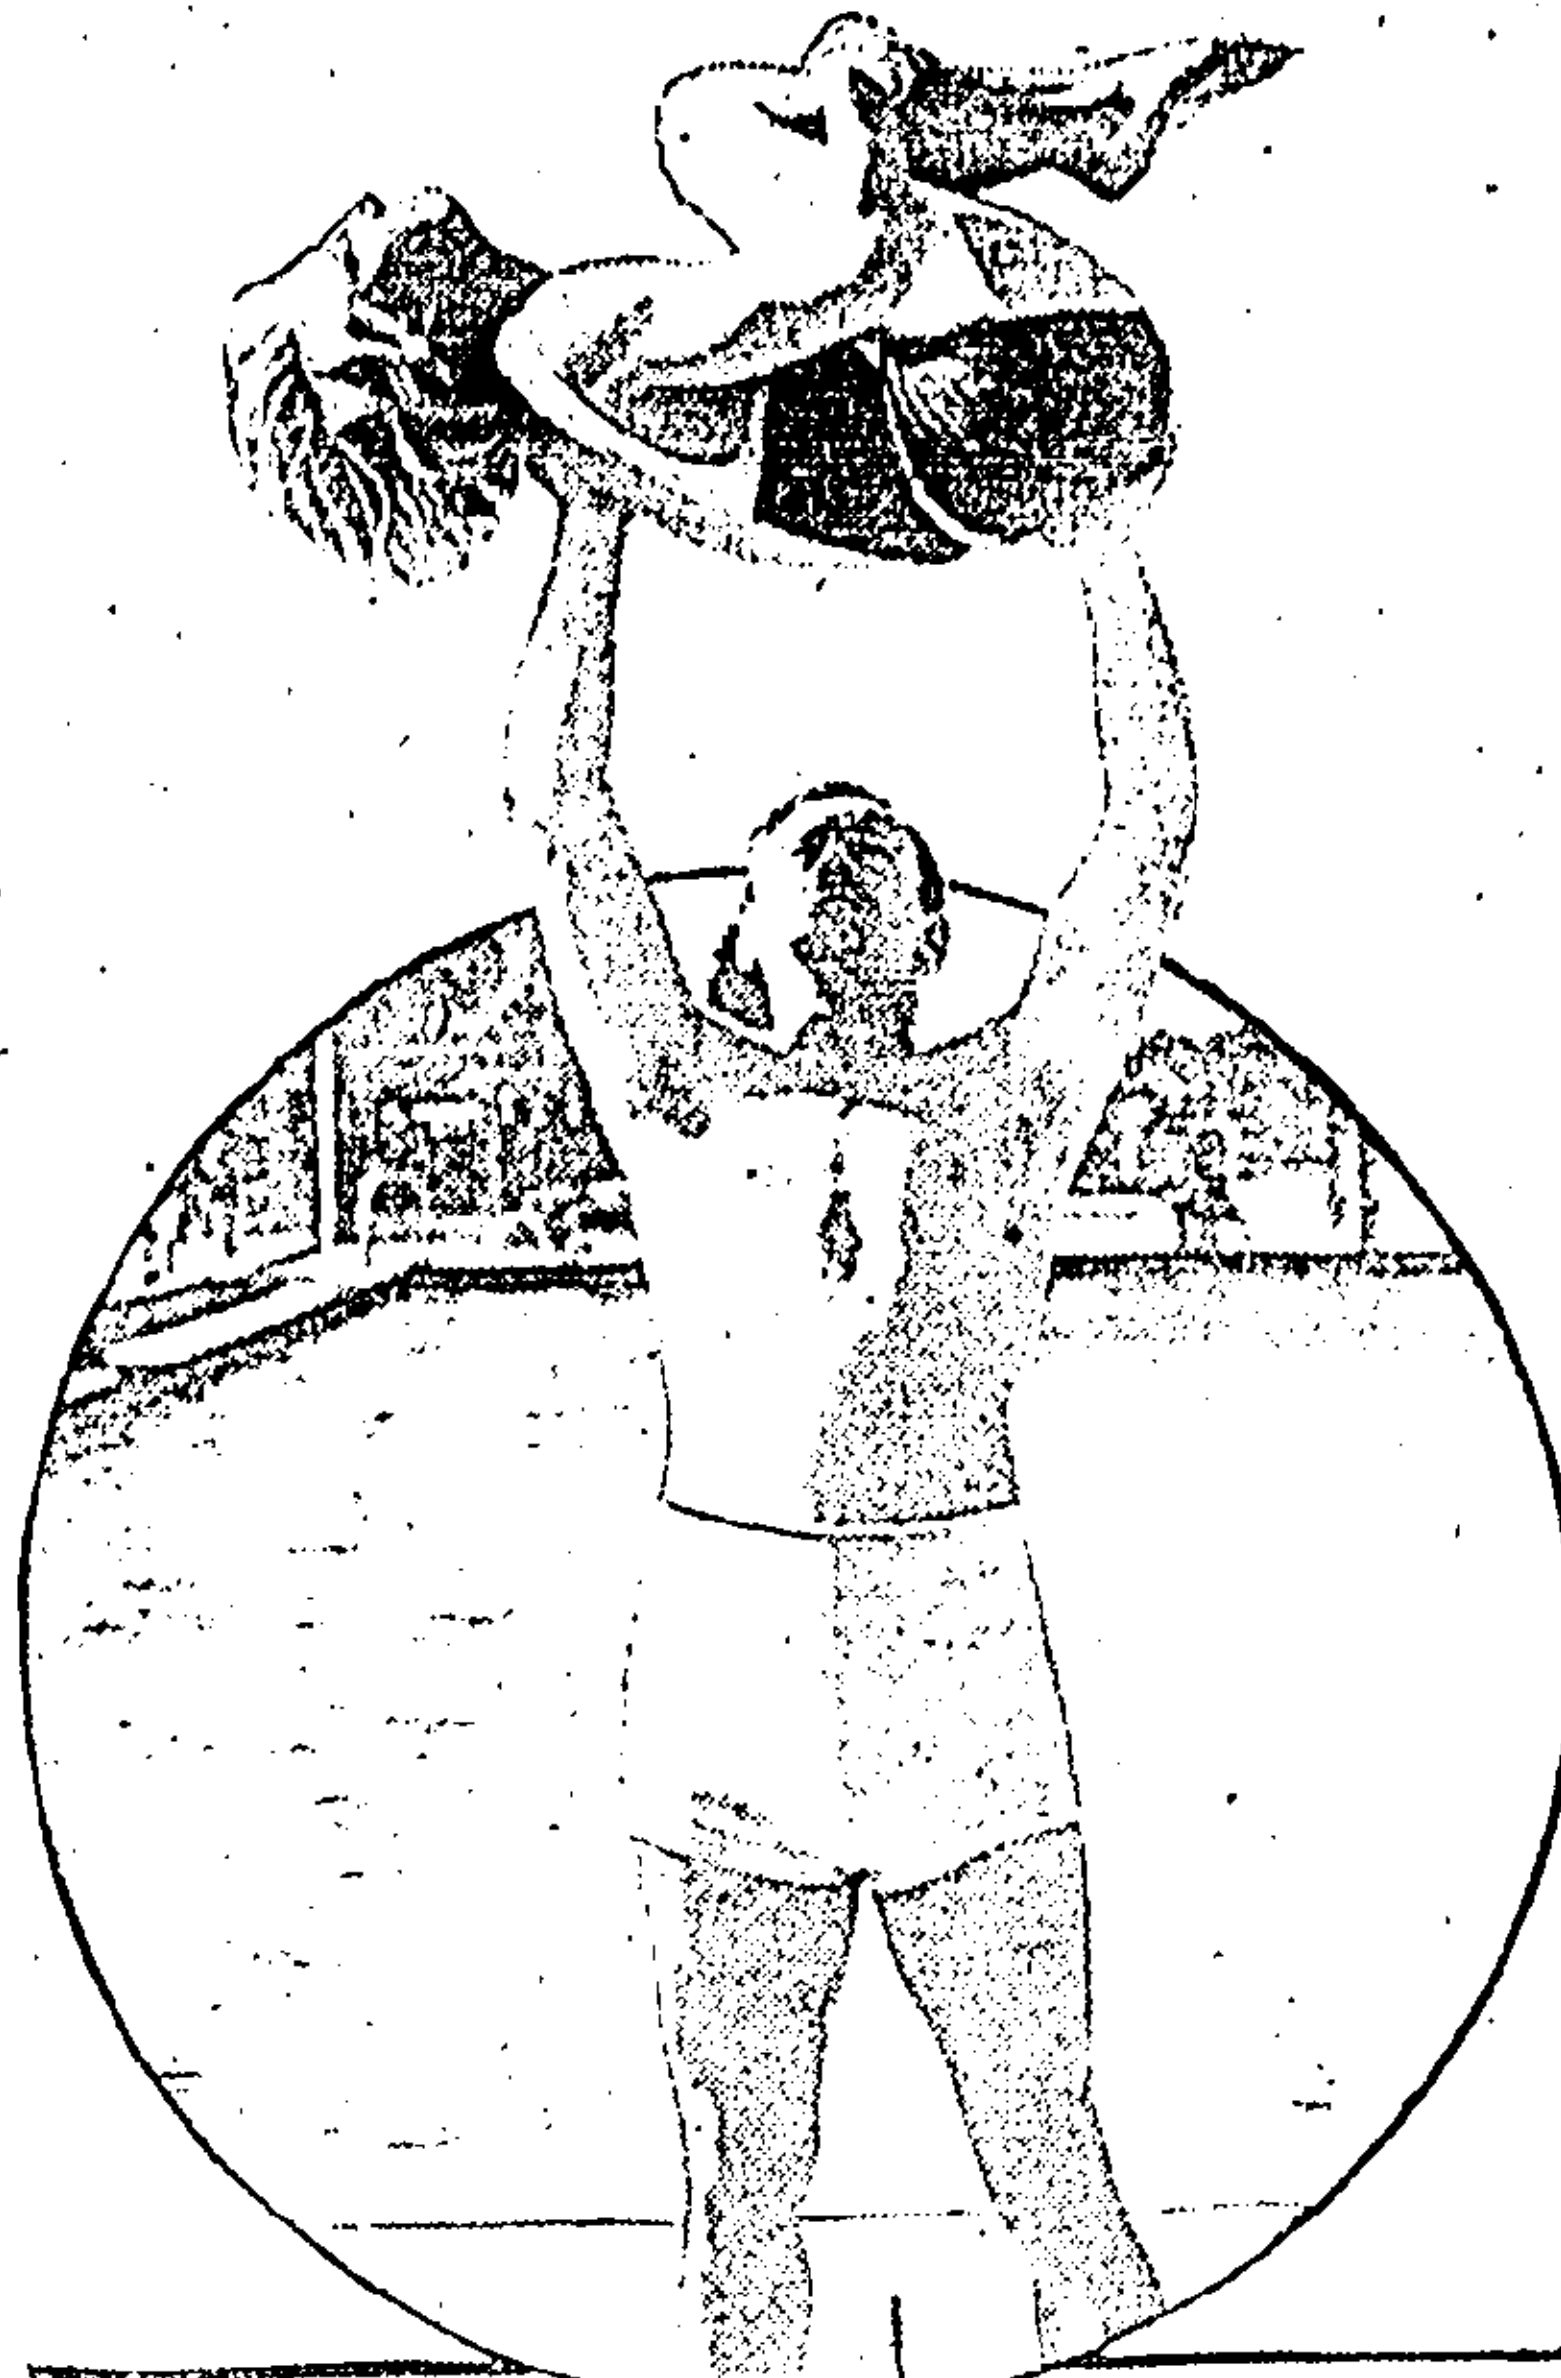

Without question she has raised the standard of women's golf.

Bremen, July 11.

The German, Latvian and Czechoslovakian Olympic teams have sailed aboard the liner "Europa" for America. The German squad is composed of 79 athletes while five others, including the German Marathon runner de Bruyn, will join the party in America. The team is headed by the famous track performers Jonath, Koerning and Dr. Peltzer, the two scullers Bullitz and Boetzden who recently won the Diamond Sculls in the Henley regatta, as well as by Sergeant Hirschfeld who holds the world-record in putting the weight.

IT appears that Miss Dorothy Poynton of the Los Angeles A.C. is about to be strong armed into an Olympic diving title if this dryland practice with Marion P. Betty, former amateur weightlifting and light heavy wrestling champion, amounts to anything. Dorothy holds the national low board championship and is a leading contender for the high board and high platform titles in the Olympic events.

BRITISH DRIVERS' SUCCESS IN SPEED BATTLE

Two British drivers, Mr. L. P. Driscoll and Mr. A. C. Bartelli, driving a British Aston Martin car, scored a triumphant success in the great 24-hour speed battle over the Le Mans circuit by winning the challenge cup of the Touring Club de l'Ouest, offered for competition between the five cars that made the best performance in last year's race over the same circuit.

The results were:
1. Aston-Martin: Driven by Messrs. Driscoll and Bartelli, who covered 1,436 miles at an average speed of about 60 miles per hour.
2. Caban. Wm. Labrick and Cabantous.
3. Talbot: Messrs. Brian Lewis and Tim Rose Richards.

Alfa Romeos won the first two places in the Grand Prix, and the Talbot of Lewis and Richards was third.

The heat was tremendous and the race was considered by some the most gruelling in the history of the track. Of the 26 starters, only nine finished and no fewer than six of the fastest cars had crashed within the first three hours of the 24 hours' struggle.

Earl Howe and Sir Henry Birkin, who were regarded as favourites for the Grand Prix, had to retire owing to engine trouble.

HERMAN Brix, once a football star at University of Washington, but now wearing Los Angeles Athletic Club's track livery, gave the world's shotputters something to heave at when he beat the world record by a mark of 52 feet 8 1/2 inches. He then tossed left-handed to set a new mark of 52 feet 3 inches for a right-and-left toss.

CHINA FEDERATION TO CONDUCT TOURNAMENT

Shanghai, July 10.

Chinese soccer football season will commence two months earlier this year, according to information from the China National Amateur Athletic Federation. A Summer Football Tournament will be instituted and will start in the middle of August.

Another innovation in the form of an inter-race football competition will be run off simultaneously with the Summer Football League on the grounds of the C.N.A.F. in Rue du Pire Frec.

Two silver cups have been donated by two enthusiasts. It is understood that the football committee appointed by the C.N.A.F. met at the Great China Restaurant in Szechuen Road, when Messrs. T. T. Mo, K. Y. Voong, T. H. Woo, S. C. Tsan and S. Y. Loeh were requested to attend.

British Women Beat Records

New World Times for 100 and 400 yd.

London, July 9.

Two world's records were broken during the British women's athletic championships at Stamford Bridge to-day.

Miss Johnson, of the Bolton Harriers, did the 100 yards in eleven seconds dead, beating the previous record of 11.5 sec. held by Mile. Radidho of France. The other new record was established in the 440 yards, when Miss Halstead of Bury covered the distance in 56.45 sec., beating her own previous record of 58.45 sec.

WOMAN TRAINER SUCCEEDS

First to Win Australian Grand National

Melbourne, July 9.

Racing history was made at Flemington to-day when Precious, the first horse owned and trained by a woman to achieve such a feat, won the Grand National Steeplechase over three miles and one furlong, Australia's biggest jumping event. Nauru ran second, while Moss Trooper, the 1930 winner, came in third.

Archeson, the favourite, dropped dead after passing the finishing post in fifth position.

CHOLERA DANGER

DR. LI TO ASK QUESTIONS IN SANITARY BOARD

Dr. Li Shu-fan will ask the following questions at the next meeting of the Sanitary Board to be held to-morrow:

- Is the Head of the Sanitary Department aware that the drying of slaughtered animals' hair, etc., is being done on certain pieces of land within a radius of 200 yards from the Kennedy Town Infectious Disease Hospital and the Kennedy Town Tung Wah Small-pox Hospital?
- Is the Head of the Sanitary Department aware that, as the result of such drying, flies breed in large numbers, and that such flies and the odour emitted from the drying beds are most objectionable to dwellers in the vicinity?
- In view of the fact that flies are well-known possible cholera-carriers, and in view of the proximity of numerous dwelling houses to the Kennedy Town Infectious Disease Hospital which at present has a comparatively large number of cholera in-patients, will the Head of the Sanitary Department consider what practical steps the Sanitary Department could take to ameliorate the existing conditions, bearing in mind the importance of the removal or mitigation of the flies nuisance within the immediate vicinity to the Hospitals mentioned?

LESSON-SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Life" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible—"These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee. As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." (John 17: 1-3.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, "Jesus said substantially, 'He that believeth in me shall not see death.' That is, he who perceives the true idea of Life loses his belief in death. He who has the true idea of good loses all sense of evil, and by reason of this is being ushered into the undying realities of Spirit. Such a one abideth in Life—Life obtained not of the body incapable of supporting life, but of Truth, unfolding its own immortal idea. Jesus gave the true idea of being, which results in infinite blessings to mortals." (p. 324.)

SOCIAL GATHERING.

CATHOLIC YOUNG MEN'S SOCIETY AT HOME

The first "At Home" held by the Catholic Young Men's Society on Saturday night proved to be a tremendous success. The function was originally intended to have been held in the Cathedral compound, but owing to the inclement weather it was held in the Club adjoining the Cathedral.

Among the visitors present were His Grace the Bishop, the Right Rev. Mr. Henry Valtorta, Rev. Fr. Suarez, Procurator of the Spanish Mission, and several other priests.

The President of the Society, Mr. J. S. Chak, addressed the gathering in Cantonese giving a short history of the Society which was founded ten years ago, and outlining the meaning of its motto, "Prayer, Action and Sacrifice." He concluded by exhorting all Catholic young men to join the Society and to derive the benefits accruing from it.

shoulder might brush against Bob's. He would look up, and smile. Perhaps he would shake hands. She would give everything she owned at this instant to slip her tingling palm into the grip of his strong fingers. It would be something to remember, something to treasure. But now he had gone and she would not see him.

What had happened was this. Denise and the Spanish youth had seen the play before and Bob, who was raging in his heart at the conversation touching Susan, was quite ready to concur in their proposal to go on some place and dance. He wanted overwhelmingly to hurt someone. Since he could not hurt Susan he turned the battery of his sarcastic fury upon his two companions.

Denise ordered the taxi driver to stop. "Look here, if you don't like us you know what you can do," she said crudely. "Bobby's in a beast of a temper." She explained to the other man. "I stepped on his pet corn and he doesn't like it. Rico and I want to go places and have fun. If you're going to crab the party you'd better get out."

Bob bowed low to her. "That's all right with me," he said elaborately. "That's fine." The door slammed after him.

"If I didn't know he hadn't had a drop I'd say he was drunk," Denise muttered, peering after Dunbar as he sauntered down the street. She was not far from right. The young man was drunk with fury and despair. Passers-by turned to stare at the tall, hatless youth in evening clothes. One or two timid women scuttled anxiously in the direction of a policeman's booth after he passed. His eyes were wild and he was talking to himself.

Without consciously directing his course he turned his steps towards the theatre. He had just left. The night was sharply cold but he was not aware of it. As he swung along he discovered that he was carrying an object in the curve of his arm. He examined it and found it was his opera hat. He laughed suddenly and sailed the thing into the middle of the street where it lay on the car tracks.

As he neared the building his steps quickened. The pavement was deserted. Perhaps the play was over and Susan had gone. Ah, that was it! He knew now why he had come back. It was for a glimpse of her, of the girl he had cherished.

"Enshrined! That's good!" he barked aloud, frightening an old cleaning woman who was trotting along homeward. He had thought Susan everything that was good and pure. In an age when young men scorned ideals he had built one about this girl.

Manlike, he felt now that he hated her for having destroyed his dream. Nevertheless he had to see her. That glimpse of her pearl-pale face through crowded aisles had been tantalizing. He did not mean to speak to her. He only wanted to stand close enough to see the downward flicker of those long lashes, and perhaps to hear the sound of her voice. It was odd how well he remembered everything about this girl. She had a little trick of catching her lower lip in her teeth. He wanted to see her do that. He wanted to look into her eyes again and determine whether they were grey or black. It tormented him to know.

The play was over at last. An attendant came out and hooked the doors open and people drifted out in twos and threes.

Where was she? Had she, too, tired of the comedy and left before it was over? Dunbar's anger turned to apprehension now. He bowed absently to two or three dowagers waiting for their car. Where was she? He had searched for her for weeks and here she had been all the time, playing around with this older man—this man in whose employ she had begun. His mouth twisted angrily.

At last he caught a glimpse of her through the crowd. In that sumptuous wrap of petal soft fur Susan looked the very young princess.

He might plunge through the crowd to seize her and carry her away as a bandit prince. He might do that—but he wouldn't. If she preferred this sort of thing she could have it. Remembering that night in the lane and her appeal for Heath's protection, Dunbar's mind wandered along in dark morasses. It was all so plain to him now. He had been wrong about her from the start.

The girl looked cool and composed as he watched her. Heath handed her into the car with a decidedly proprietary air.

"Damn him!" muttered the boy in the shadow.

The car began to slide away and Dunbar woke to life. The pain throbbed in his breast. He

Tokyo, July 17.

If the League Commission report, which is expected to be handed in to the League of Nations not later than the end of August, recommends the opening of an international conference of the signatories of the Nine Power Treaty, it is generally observed that a head-on collision between Japan and the League will be unavoidable and there will be no other alternative for Japan than to take the initiative in giving prompt recognition to the Manchukuo.

It is also reported from Japanese sources that should the report not be what is expected, the Japanese Government will take up a measure, showing her determination concerning the question of the Dairen Customs.

A Japanese spokesman at the Foreign Office to-day stated that the Japanese principle to Manchuria was unchanged.—Reuter's Special To Meet Mission.

Peking, July 17.

Dr. Wellington Koo, who has been on a holiday at Peitaiho for the past fortnight, returned to Tientsin this morning, and will proceed to Taingtau by train to-night to meet the Lytton Commission.

From Nanking it is reported that Dr. Wellington Koo will be the Chinese delegate at the forthcoming League of Nations Assembly meeting at Geneva.—Reuter.

CUSTOMS QUESTION.

Tokyo, July 17.
The foreign office has instructed its Charge D'Affaires in Nanking, Mr. Yano, to inform Nanking that Japan is unable to subscribe to the suggested appointment of Mr. Hirokichi Kishimoto, Chief Secretary to the Inspector General of Chinese Customs, as Commissioner of Customs at Dairen in succession to Mr. Fukumoto, on the grounds that the case regarding the dismissal of Mr. Fukumoto has not yet been settled.—Reuter.

Mr. Fukumoto was dismissed for refusing to hand over to the Inspectorate the revenue which the Manchukuo Government is seizing.

Nanking, July 16.

It was learned here to-day that if the protests lodged with the Japanese Government against the seizure of the Customs in Manchuria remain unheeded, the Chinese Government will order all Customs stations south of the Great Wall to collect import duties on all goods destined for Dairen or Manchuria.

Thus any attempt by Manchukuo to levy Customs duties on these imports will have the effect of subjecting them to double taxation.—Reuter.

LAURA GUERITE.

SCORES A BRILLIANT SUCCESS

Miss Laura Guerite, the well-known entertainer, scored a brilliant success in her appearance at the Rose Room of the Peninsula Hotel on Saturday evening, a large company of revelers cheering her exceptionally clever turns.

Miss Guerite, who has played in Florenz Zeigfeld's Folies, produced revues and composed songs and lyrics, is still a great artiste, and her extremely clever monologues and witty patter were delivered in her best style.

Opening with an amusing monologue on the modern girl, Miss Guerite next endeavored to satisfy her enthusiastic audience with an interpretation of her famous "Queens of England," later gave the Italian slave girl, and, finally, in reply to numerous requests and insistent demands from the Rose Room audience, her brilliantly witty monologue, "My Canary."

The occasion was one of the most successful and enjoyable arranged by the enterprising hotel management, and it came as welcome news to those present to learn that it would be repeated on Saturday next when Miss Guerite will introduce some more of her favourite numbers.

was losing her again—he might never see her—

He began to run.

"Susan, Susan," he called.

The policeman directing traffic took the young man by the arm.

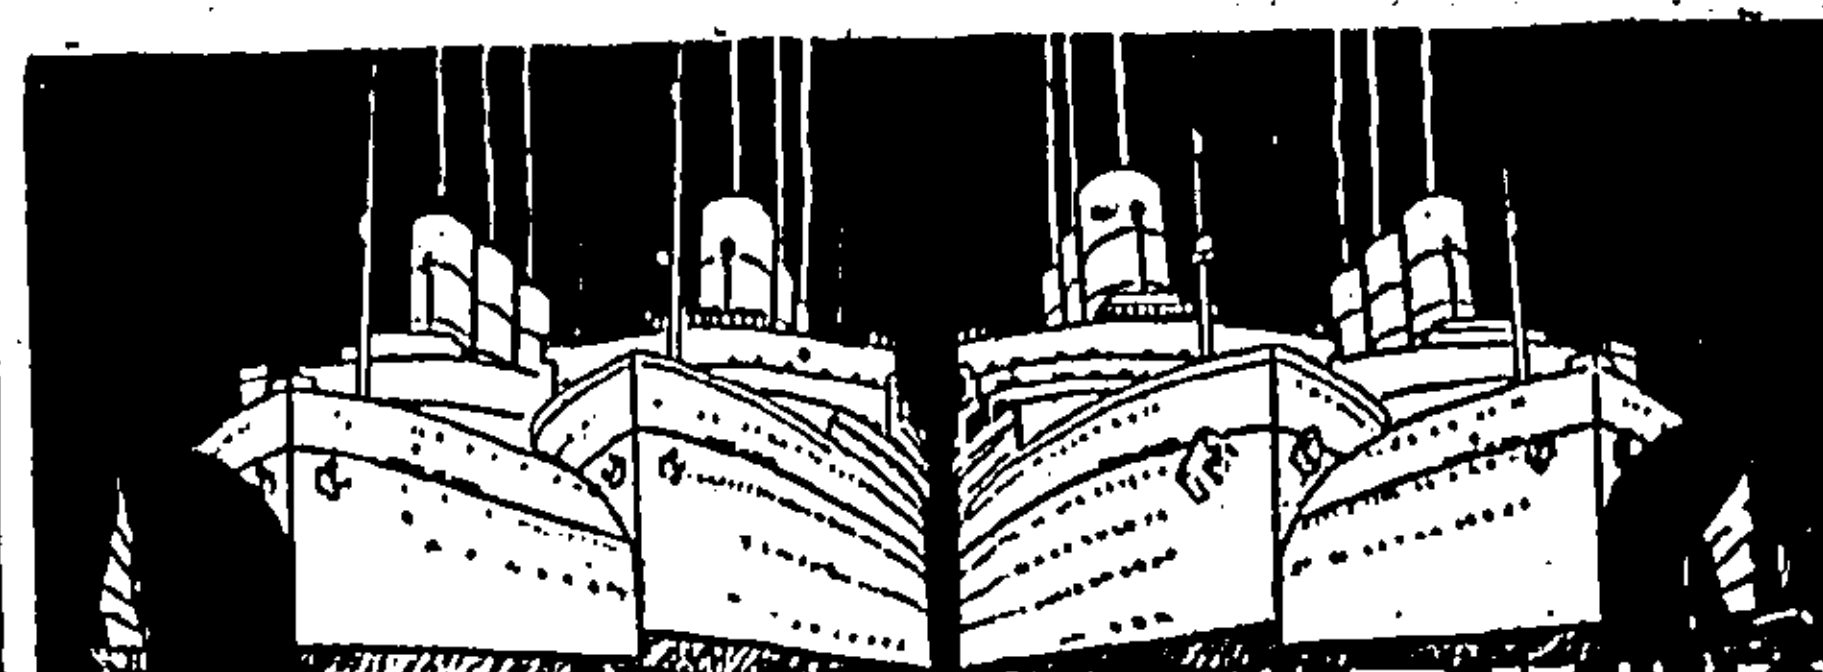

Bob began to laugh mirthlessly.

"It's all right," he told the officer.

"It's all right," he shook off the detaining hand.

"Too much bad gin," the policeman said to himself, watching the "young swell" stride into the night.

London, July 16.

The death is reported of Field Marshal Lord Plumer, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.B.E., K.V.B., C.B., G.C.V.O.—Reuter.

Herbert Charles Plumer, the British general, was born at Torquay in March 1857, and educated at Eton. In 1876 he joined the York and Lancaster Regiment. He served on the Red Sea coast in 1884 and commanded a mounted regiment in the Matabele war. Before the South African campaign he was sent out to the Cape on special service and raised the Rhodesian Field Force which he commanded in early stages of the conflict. General Plumer took part in the relief of Mafeking. During the advance a shell burst close to him while he was conferring with his staff. He merely said to an aide: "Kindly tell the artillery officer to be good enough to silence that gun" and resumed his conversation. He acted as leader of various columns and at the end of the campaign was promoted major-general and appointed an A. D. C. to the King. He then commanded a brigade at home and in 1903 the 4th Army Corps. In the latter years he was appointed Quartermaster-General and 3rd military member of the Army Council. From 1906 when he was knighted (K.C.B.) to 1909 he commanded the 15th Division in Ireland. In 1908 he was promoted Lieut.-General and in 1911 was appointed to the Northern Command.

At the outset of the great war he led the 5th Army Corps. In 1915 he was promoted full general and given command of the 2nd Army which held the line on the southern side of the Ypres salient. In June, 1917, he won the battle of Messines which removed the German menace to the salient. From the Messines-Wytschaete ridge the Germans had dominated Ypres and the whole of the line from which an Allied offensive in Flanders started. For nearly one and a half years tunnelling had been going on under this ridge and at dawn on June 7 nineteen huge mines were exploded beneath the German lines—the greatest artificial eruption that had ever shattered the earth's crust. The New Zealanders then carried the Messines, the Irish Wytschaete and the Welsh Oosttaverne, while the Australians pushed on further. For this victory Plumer was awarded the G.C.B. He then directed with success the operations east of Ypres, after which he was sent in November 1917, to Italy in command of the British force dispatched to aid the Italians in their recovery after the Caporetto disaster, but was recalled to France to lead the 2nd Army just before the German offensive in the spring of 1918. His troops were forced back several miles, but he succeeded in checking the Germans and, when the general advance of the Allies began in August 1918, his army had a large share in recovering Belgian Flanders. For his services during the war he was created Baron Plumer of Messines and Bilton, promoted Field Marshal and given a grant of £30,000. Plumer had the reputation of being the best tempered general in the army. Once while passing through the sector of the 2nd Army, he saw on a wall some posters of a weekly paper with the legend "No more doddering generals". To a friend he said: "You see these? They

TWO INCIDENTS REPORTED TO THE POLICE

Two motor mishaps, results of the drivers having to avoid running over animals in the roadway, were reported to the Police on Saturday from the New Territories. In one instance a lorry collided with a tree, with considerable damage to the front part of the vehicle.

In notifying the Police of a mishap which occurred on the Tai Po Road as a lorry was being driven to Sheung Shui, on Saturday the driver, who is also part owner of the vehicle, stated that he was travelling at a speed of twelve miles an hour and when near the Sha Ning village in the Tai Po District he swerved to avoid a pig which had run across the road in front of his lorry. The vehicle skidded on the wet surface and collided with a tree. The front axle was broken and the front portion of the lorry badly damaged. The driver received several cuts from flying glass from the wind screen.

Another Mishap.

The second mishap occurred on the Tsun Wan Road, just below the Police Station, where the driver of a public car suddenly stopped to avoid hitting a dog on Friday afternoon. A Kowloon motor bus which was following collided with the rear of the car and caused damage to the bumper and petrol tank.

MOTORBOAT SINKS

EUROPEAN AND CHINESE IN HARBOUR

A European and two Chinese, aboard a motor-boat were forced to dive into the harbour yesterday morning, when the motor-boat was involved in a collision with a steam launch. The three were soon picked up by the launch, and were little the worse for their immersion.

The European engaged the motorboat at Blake Pier to take him to the steamer Lyceum about 10 o'clock and when in the vicinity of the O. S. K. Wharf, the vessel collided with a Chinese-owned steam launch. The motor-boat, Moonraker No. 3, was badly damaged and sank almost immediately.

Salvage was begun in the afternoon, and was successful, the vessel being taken to Yau-mai for repair.

mean me. But I leave them there because they amuse the men."

From December 1918, to April 1919 General Plumer commanded the British Army of the Rhine, but in June of that year he was sent to Malta as Governor and Commander-in-Chief, remaining there until 1924 when he retired. After Sir H. Samuel had given up the post of High Commissioner in Palestine, however, General Plumer was prevailed on to succeed him which he did in March, 1925. His unshakable courtesy and cool head proved a great asset in dealing with the conflicting interests of the Zionists and the Arabs. In April 1928, he was also made High Commissioner for Transjordan.

NO "V"-NECK FOR POSTMEN

"DEFINITELY INCONGRUOUS" STATES P.M.G.

Postmen must not wear open-necked shirts.

The Postmaster-General, in a letter published in the Post Office workers' journal, refusing the request, states that he considers that to dispense with a tie and to leave unfastened the top button or stud of the shirt would be definitely incongruous and altogether out of keeping with the general appearance of uniform.

Smartness of appearance, which is generally associated in the public mind with efficiency, would, in the Postmaster-General's opinion, be endangered.

As regards the question of comfort, the Postmaster-General points out that postmen are already allowed to wear soft collars, and a shirt with a reasonably low-cut neck opening and a collar to match, provided that the collar and the top button (or stud) of the shirt were fastened, and a tie were worn.

Earlier it was announced that the Metropolitan policemen must wear their chin straps, and not tuck them in their helmets.

BOXER SUSPENDED

REFEREE

Fred Webster, of Kentish Town, the former light weight boxing champion and winner of three amateur titles, has had his boxer's license suspended by the British Boxing Board of Control.

The suspension, which was for one month, up to and including July 21, was the outcome of a discussion by the Southern Branch of the Board of Control, following the scene which took place at Portsmouth on June 8, when Webster was disqualified by the referee, Mr.
Moss Deyong.

The Southern Branch also ruled that Mr. Deyong should be reprimanded.

A controversy arose after Mr.
Leyong had disqualified Fred Webster in an eliminator contest for the welter-weight contest. Mr.
Deyong struck Webster and alleged that the latter had used an offensive expression.

MR. LANSBURY'S CENSURE

HIS ONE FAITHFUL SUPPORTER

'PATIENCE, GEORGE'

Westminster, June 24.
When Mr. Lansbury was writing out his Vote of Censure, declaring it a scandal that in eight whole months the Government had not brought back prosperity, he ought to have remembered what Lord Snowden used to tell him: "You have got to have patience, George."

That was just the advice Mr.
Baldwin gave him (and the rest of us) in the House of Commons to-night. "It is a long row we have to hoe," said the Conservative Leader, reiterating the obvious; but the point of this speech was to show that the National Government has made a start with the job and put a handle on the hoe.

The spectacle of Mr. Lansbury winning under the drops "the economic blizzard" is still sending down his back, and dancing about brandishing his tattered Socialist umbrella, always leaves a flavour of amusement. Hoarsely sincere about the storm that has overtaken the world, the Leader of the Opposition is futile in his methods of coming in from the rain.

Mr. Lloyd George paid a paternal visit to see how the House was behaving. He sat on the corner of the bench while Mr. Lansbury was heaving out censure and appeared to be thinking he could have done it better than George.

And the odd thing was that when Mr. Baldwin rose and defended the Government, Mr. Lloyd George remained equally meditative. He was now reflecting that he could have done it better than Stanley.

Mr. Lawson Concur.

However, to return to the Opposition Leader—he quoted Mr.
Churchill, the Morning Post, the League of Nations and other unimpeachable, though diverse, authorities to prove that the country is gliding to an infernal crash.
"Trade and industry are in much worse plight than when the Government took office," said Mr.
Lansbury.

"Hear, hear," yelled Mr. Lawson. One mentions this because no one else appeared to agree.

The gamblers (averred Mr.
Lansbury) created the crisis, and therefore, as one leg of his policy, the Socialist Leader advocated nationalising the City of London.
As the other leg (his policy marched on two legs) he urged settling the unemployed on dorelect land up Yorkshire way. Tariffs had failed and merely increased unemployment.

"Hear, hear," yelled Mr. Lawson.

Mr. Baldwin began with a good jibe about the orphans of the storm, the ship-wrecked mariners, endeavouring to move a vote of censure on the libelomans who saved them last year. Then he described the progress of the Cabinet crew.

Imports Checked.

Under their direction the country has slightly increased its volume of trade and the imports of competing manufacturers have been stemmed. In a world in which trade has been shrinking and a tangle of obstacles makes exchange high impossible, Great Britain has held her own; and as affairs stand, the Conservative Leader does not think the country can expect much more.

Not for three or four years, declared Mr. Baldwin frankly, would it be seen whether the tariff—the right and only experiment in our difficulties—fulfilled its hope.
As often before, he expressed disbelief in Protection for Pro-tection's sake; there is an appalling amount of grift in the machine of circulation; and one of the prime objects of the Government is to push off the world map the exchange restrictions, the quays, the high duties and the multifarious impediments to trade.

Lausanne "offers us some hopes" it was rather cautiously put. If the British Government's policy of cancellation carried the day, a long step to confidence would have been taken; but Mr. Baldwin was only wondering if it would carry the day.

And so the purport of the speech was this: "You have got to have patience, George."

Mr. Maxton was barren and bitter, forecasting nothing but a progress through deterioration to catastrophe and charging Mr.
Baldwin in his guise of the simple, honest man, of wilfully beuiling the nation.

THE HANDSOME APPRENTICE

UNION

Rome, June 23.
The Trade Union at Frosinone has been confronted with an unusual and delicate problem: "Is an employer justified in dismissing an apprenticed workman because his women workers fell in love with him?"

The employer in the case owns a shoe factory, and for some months past he noticed growing discord and signs of jealousy among his women employees with consequent falling off in quality and quantity of work. Discreet inquiries revealed that the cause of all the unrest was that the whole female staff had fallen in love with Giuseppe, a handsome young apprentice.

Thinking that to put Giuseppe out of sight would be to put him out of mind, the employer sent him home, but the apprentice appealed to the Union for damages against his employer or reinstatement at work. In answer to the plea that it was not his fault if all the women chose to fall in love with him, the employer responded with evidence that the apprentice was by no means passive in the matter, and that it was his habit to write impassioned billets d'amour to the women and use the toes of shoes as a convenient way of passing his message and spreading jealousy.

The Trade Union, however, has taken the gallant view. It has pronounced that to be loved wholesalo is no offence, that the circulation of love declarations, even if widespread and unorthodox, does not justify dismissal and it has ordered that Giuseppe be taken back into employment.

BRITAIN RECAPTURES WATER SPEED RECORD

KAYE DON DOES 117.43 M.P.H.

DAWN DASH OVER LOCH LOMOND

London, July 18.
Kaye Don to-day achieved his ambition of regaining the world's water speed record for Britain in Miss England III, by attaining a speed of 117.43 miles an hour, says Reuter.

The famous motorist and motor-bout expert was out on the waters of Loch Lomond at dawn, the record-breaking venture being made at 5.30 a.m.

Last week in an unofficial trial, he achieved a speed of 114 miles per hour, which itself exceeded the recognised motorboat record of 111.71 miles an hour, held by the American, Commodore Gar Wood.

120 HOPED FOR.

Miss England III, built by Lord Wakefield for Kaye Don in the hope of wresting the title from America, has proved worthy, and Don was hopeful that he could force her up to 120 miles an hour.

That was also the hope of the designer of the craft, Commander Leyland, who was confident from the start that he could build a boat which would outdo Gar Wood's record, set at Miami, February 5.

He did not quite achieve his objective but beat the old record by nearly 6 m.p.h.

An innovation in the new boat is the installation of two propellers. Miss England II relied on one tiny screw that turned at 12,000 revolutions a minute. The result was that when cornering at high speed the boat skidded like an auto on a greasy road.

CORNER CONTROL.

Miss England III has a throttle control, which enables Don, when cornering, to ease off the speed of one propeller while using the other to send the boat around the bend. By this means he can corner at something like 100 miles per hour.

It was while cornering last year in his thrilling duel with Gar Wood, that Kaye Don overturned and narrowly escaped death.

The step of Miss England III, on which she climbs on to the surface of the water, is an integral part of the boat. The step of Miss England II, which broke when struck by a log floating in Lake Windermere, resulting in the death of Sir Henry Segrave, was bolted on to the frame.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

Every grain in the woodwork of the new £10,000 craft was subjected to microscopic examination. The cross members are of Honduras mahogany and the frame of Canadian rock elm. The stern is squat and flat, and her bows taper to the thinness of a razor blade.

To enable her to glide across the water as though on skates a special smooth paint finish was used, and on top of this was placed a coating of graphite, forming a layer of lubricant between the boat and the water.

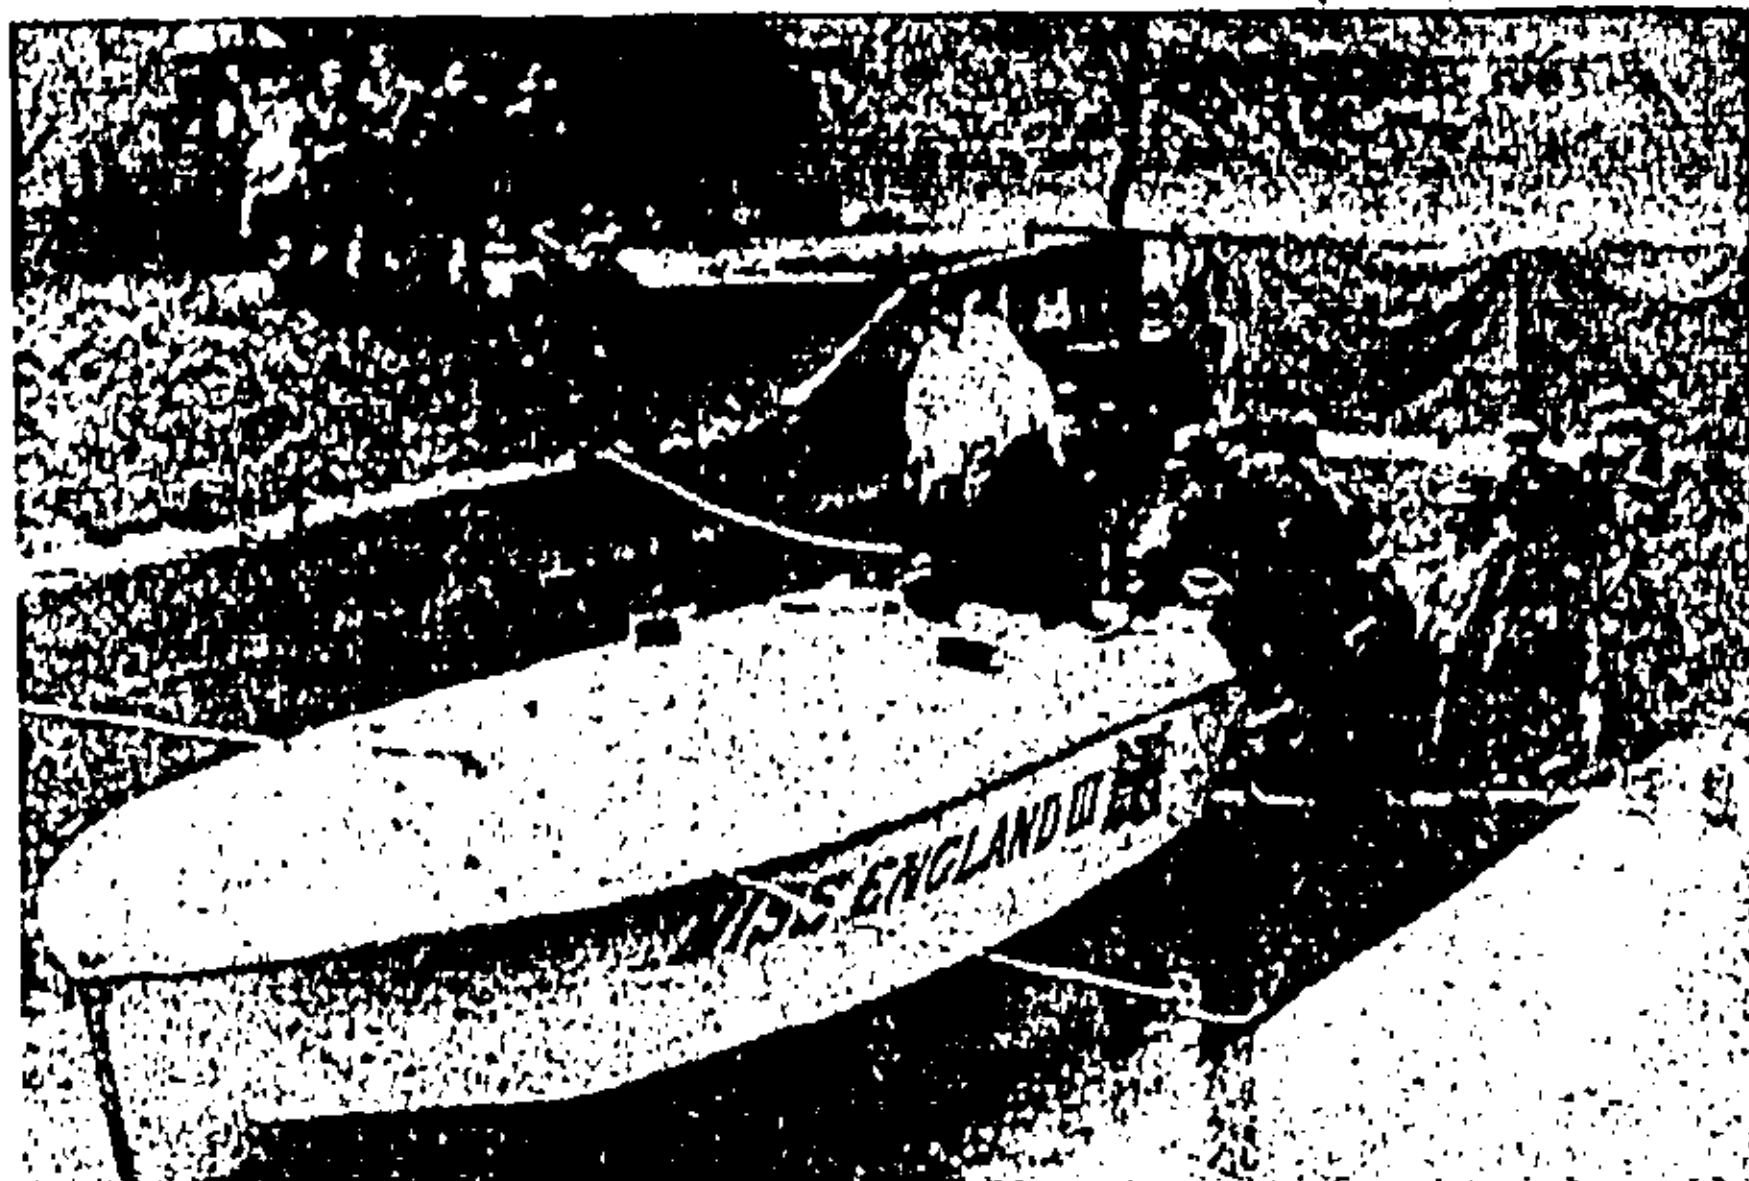

DEATH OF LADY BEATTY

London, July 17.

The death occurred to-day of Countess Beatty, the wife of Admiral of the Fleet Earl Beatty, commander-in-chief of the Grand Fleet in the latter part of the Great War.

Countess Beatty was the eldest daughter of the Chicago millionaire, Marshall Field, Junr, and she married Earl Beatty in 1901 when he held the rank of Commander in the Navy.—Reuter.

AUSTIN SEVEN OVER EMBANKMENT

A fortunate escape from injury when his Austin Seven ran off the roadway and overturned at Castle Peak yesterday was the experience of Mr. H. Teale, who had as passengers his wife and daughter.

Mr. Teale was driving his car to the Cafeateria Beach near the Main Castle Peak beach, when the offside wheels ran over the edge of the road, causing the car to overturn. Fortunately Mr. Teale was able to extricate himself and his family without injuries. Mrs. Teale, however, suffered somewhat from shock.

PARKED IN PADDY FIELD.

An accident which might easily have had serious consequences befell Mr. H. A. Rodgers, of the Hongkong Land Investment and Agency Co., last night as he was returning from Sheung Shui to Taiipo.

Mr. Rodgers was driving his car, No. 2080, towards his residence, the "Lookout" at Taiipo. As he was approaching the bridge at Taiipo Market at about midnight, the vehicle skidded and ran off the road into the paddy field. Fortunately it came to rest in an upright position and the driver was not in any way injured.

LAD KNOCKED DOWN.

Mr. T. P. Rolland, wireless operator of the P.W.D., residing at 11, Conduit Road, knocked down a Chinese boy whilst driving private motor car No. 3295 in Caine Road at about 6.30 p.m., near Castle Road.

The accident occurred in front of Kom Tong Hall where the lad, Kwong Shing, aged 14, of 64, Bridges Street, attempted to cross the road in front of the car. He received injuries to his face and right leg and was taken to the Government Civil Hospital where he was detained, although his injuries were not of a serious nature.

COLLISION WITH TAXI.

A collision between a private car and a taxi in Jackson Street, near the Hongkong Club, has been reported to the police by Mr. L. Glendinning, of East Point Terrace.

Mr. Glendinning was driving car No. 2385 along Chater Road at 11.45 p.m. last night and when crossing Jackson Road a taxi collided with the rear of his car, causing damage to the rear mudguard and the bumper. Slight damage was caused to the front mudguard and bumper of the taxi.

MOTOR-CYCLE MISHAP.

Whilst driving a motor cycle along the roadway leading to Lai Chikok Beach, Mr. W. H. Floyd, a prison warder, knocked down a small Chinese girl who received minor injuries to the left side of her face.

According to a report which was subsequently made to the police,

TUNG WAH & CHOLERA

M.O.H. ASKED FOR EXPLANATION

INTERVIEW IN PRESS

A denial that there was any failure by the Tung Wah Hospital to notify cholera cases to the M.O.H. is implied in a series of questions to be submitted at to-morrow's meeting of the Sanitary Board by Mr. M. K. Lo.

Dr. G. W. Pope, the Medical Officer of Health is asked for an explanation of statements made to the press.

Has the attention of the Head of the Sanitary Department been drawn to the leading article on the cholera epidemic which appeared in the S. C. M. Post of Thursday, June 30, to the report of an alleged interview with the M. O. H. which appeared in the same paper on Friday, July 1, and to the letter of explanation by Dr. S. W. Phoon, Medical Superintendent of the Tung Wah Hospital, which appeared in the same paper of July 1.

CONTRARY TO FACTS.

(1) In view of the impression created by the said newspaper report and comments, which were expressly stated to have been based upon an interview with the Medical Officer of Health, such impression being—(a) That the medical staff of the Tung Wah had failed to make the necessary notifications to the Medical Authorities after the cases had been diagnosed as Cholera, and (b) that the sixteen cases reported on Tuesday the 28th June, were discovered by some outside person connected with the Medical Department, but not connected with the Tung Wah Hospital staff.

Does the Medical Officer of Health agree that such impression is entirely contrary to the facts of the case?

(2) Is it not the fact that the first cases of Cholera notified to the Medical Officer of Health were: one case notified on Saturday 18th June, and another case on Monday 20th June, both notifications being by the Tung Wah Hospital?

(3) Is it not a fact that the Tung Wah was the first institution to spot and to report to the Medical Authorities the existence of the cases?

the girl, Tse Nui, aged five years, of 126, Shanghai Street, ran across the road as the cycle was approaching about 6 o'clock yesterday. She was knocked down and later taken to hospital, but was not detained.

CITY ACCIDENT.

Slight injuries were received by Li Fuk, aged 60, of no fixed abode when he was knocked down by a motor lorry in Connaught Road Central yesterday. The victim received a cut over the left eye but refused to go to hospital for treatment.

ANTI-BRITISH STIR IN DUBLIN

CITY PLASTERED WITH POSTERS

ULSTER BORDER INCIDENT

Dublin, July 17.
"BOYCOTT BRITISH GOODS." Dublin awakened this morning to find the streets plastered with enormous anti-British placards and linen banners, the principal slogan being that noted above.

Dozens of shops and offices exhibited the posters and a huge banner was stretched across the main street, bearing the same slogan.

Feeling against Britain is running extremely high as a result of the imposition of special import duties against Ireland in consequence of the withholding of the land annuities, but the police force is now busily engaged in removing the offending posters at the request of the Irish Free State Government.

PROTEST MEETINGS.

Meetings have been held in various parts of the city to-day in protest against the action of the London Government.

Feeling has been exacerbated by an incident at the Free State.

H.K.F.A. COUNCIL TO MEET

FOR "MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE"

The Honorary Secretary of the Hongkong Football Association notifies that a meeting of the Council will be held in the Association offices on Wednesday next at 5.30 p.m., when "several matters of importance will be transacted."

HEALTH UNDERMINED.

In swooning upon hearing the verdict in the case, Mrs. Hutton's head struck the stone floor.

It was at first thought that she was suffering from concussion, but it was later discovered that the skull had been fractured. The fight for her life has been rendered more difficult by her state of health.

It is stated that her constitution had been undermined by the publication of a book by one of her former assistants, alleging irregularities in the conduct of the charities of her Angelus Temple, under the title: "Aimee, Gospel Gold-digger."

RED ROUND-UP IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, July 18.
One of the most notable round-ups of Communists was made yesterday when 94 Communist leaders, including undergraduates of Shanghai universities were arrested by the Chinese Municipal Police at the Kung Woo Theatre.

Prior to the Police raid, the Chinese Municipal Government had been informed of a proposed Communist meeting at the theatre. The Communist leaders were engaged in discussions, when the Police entered and detained the whole party.—Rensha.

COLLAPSE AFTER COURT VERDICT

(Reuter's Special Service).

Los Angeles, July 17.

Aimee Semple McPherson, now Mrs. David Hutton, who is suffering from a fracture of the base of the skull, is in a critical precarious condition, according to the report of her doctors.

Mrs. Hutton, who is world-famous as Aimee McPherson, the evangelist, collapsed last week on learning that her husband had been ordered to pay $1,000 damages in a breach of promise suit brought by a pretty nurse.

The nurse alleged that Hutton proposed to her a bribe while before he met and married Mrs. McPherson.

Health undermined. In swooning upon hearing the verdict in the case, Mrs. Hutton's head struck the stone floor.

It was at first thought that she was suffering from concussion, but it was later discovered that the skull had been fractured. The fight for her life has been rendered more difficult by her state of health.

Washington, July 17.

Grave troubles appear to be in store in Washington in consequence of the high feeling among unemployed ex-Servicemen at the refusal of the administration to consent to the payment of the war bonuses.

Every precaution is being taken against disturbances, the White House being strongly guarded.

The gates of the White House, the Presidential residence, have been locked and the whole neighbourhood has been isolated by the throwing out of a police cordon, to guard it against possible outbreaks.

Thousands of unemployed and ex-Servicemen are in Washington to-day, most of them from Oregon and California. Last week, they marched to the Capitol carrying bed-rolls and announced their intention of camping on the Capitol grounds until the Bonus Bill had been passed or until Congress adjourned.

They were cleared away by the police and fortunately no serious incident occurred.

MEN INDIGNANT.

To-day, however, the authorities have reason to fear the possibility of outbreaks so incensed are the unemployed and ex-Servicemen at the adjournment of Congress without passing legislation for the cashing of the war bonuses.—Reuter.

Berlin, July 17.

Fighting occurred in many places in Germany to-day and in the course of grave street fighting, eleven persons were killed and eighty-three injured.—Reuter.

Provided with sound synchronization, "Ben Hur," shown in its original silent form a few years ago, has come back to the Queen's Theatre with a new interest for those who have seen and admired the massive and spectacular settings and quick drama of the production. Roman Novarro heads a large cast, his acting being all that could be desired. The picture is showing again to-day and to-morrow.

Kimberley, July 17.

Three hundred and twelve tons of dynamite, sufficient to destroy a small city, being transported by railway train, exploded on the line between Kimberley and the Rand gold mines to-day.

The huge consignment went up with a shattering roar which was heard for miles and shook buildings over an enormous area.

Eight persons were killed.

A house nearby the scene of the disastrous explosion was wrecked and a married woman and her three children all succumbed to their injuries.

GONE IN A FLASH.

Thirty-four trucks in which the dynamite was being carried were blown to smithereens. One moment the train was puffing steadily along the line. The next, it had disappeared, literally in a flash.

An enormous trench, fifteen feet deep and over three hundred yards long was blown in the permanent way, which presents a remarkable spectacle.

It was fortunate that the explosion occurred in the comparatively desolate part of the railway. Had such an enormous quantity of dynamite gone up while the train was passing through the suburbs of Kimberley, the mishap would probably have assumed the proportions of a great catastrophe.—Reuter.

THE JAPANESE IN SHANGHAI

ONLY TWO AREAS IN THEIR CONTROL

Shanghai, July 18.

American, British and Italian officials attended yesterday's ceremony which marked the further withdrawal of Japanese marines and the handing over of control to the Chinese police.

At present only two areas are still controlled by the Japanese forces; otherwise, all areas in Shanghai and Greater Shanghai are controlled by the proper authorities exactly as prior to the opening of Sino-Japanese hostilities on January 28.

The two exceptions are the Japanese Toyoda Cotton Mill and the Chinese Kung Dah Cotton Mill.—Reuter.

HONGKONG DOLLAR UNCHANGED

The Hongkong dollar is unchanged at 1s. 3½d. to-day, the market being very dull. There has been small inter-bank business at about 1s. 3½d. to-day.

In London, silver declined 3/16ths spot and 1/8th forward. China sold, and there was small business. The undertone is steady.

New York reports silver down 1/8th, with the market dull.

The expert rarely makes an opening forcing two bid; even with South's powerful hand the opening bid should be one. The following hand makes use of the one over one forcing bid:

♠ J-2	♥ A-Q-10-5	♦ 9-8	♣ Q-10-8-4-3
♠ A-10-9-6-5-3	♥ 8-3	♦ 4-2	♣ J-6-5

♠ K-Q-8	♥ 7-2	♦ A-K-7-6	♣ A-K-9-2

The BiddingAlthough South holds five quick tricks, the hand is not strong enough for an original forcing two bid. Therefore, the dealer opens with one diamond, West passes and North bids one heart.This bid of one heart is a one bid overcalling a one bid and requires partner to keep the bidding open once, but makes no promise for game. Both of East's suits have now been bid, so he passes. South then bids two no trump to show a strong hand; West passes and North goes to three clubs. East passes and South jumps to four no trump, inviting a slam, but as North's hand is an absolute minimum without even a solid heart suit, he properly passes.The PlayWest opened his fourth best spade, the six-spot; dummy played small, East the four and the declarer won the trick with the eight-spot. Declarer then ran off five straight club tricks. On the fifth club declarer discarded the six of diamonds. West followed with three clubs and discarded a heart and a diamond. East was forced to discard two hearts and two diamonds.Declarer's next play was the jack of spades from dummy, overtaking in his own hand with the ace and led the eight of hearts.
Dummy played the ten-spot and East won the trick with jack.
East returned the queen of diamonds which the declarer

Washington's "Bonus City" in a comprehensive general view. Here, huddled among their shacks, crude mess tables and cold kitchens, the thousands of war veterans "dug in," determined they said to remain until Congress pays their service compensation certificates.

A modern-day Mecca for increasing legions of destitute ex-service men, "Bonus City" is seen in this striking aerial picture to have grown to vast proportions on its site on the outskirts of Washington. Note how a semblance of military order was achieved in setting up the shelters in regular rows.

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Susan Carey, 20 and beautiful, has become engaged to marry Ernest Heath, her former employer. She is secretly in love with Bob Dunbar, who is said to have "an understanding" with Denise Ackroyd, a girl of his own set. Heath's wife has just secured a Reno divorce. Susan's chief motive in promising to marry Heath is the desire to provide for the future of her Aunt Irene, who has cared for her since childhood. Her aunt is ill now and Heath has arranged to send her south. Susan is staying with the Miltons, old friends. Ben Lampman, an old sailor, shoots at Heath one night in a fit of jealousy, injuring him slightly. Lampman then turns the gun on himself. After several days of illness the doctor announces that Lampman will recover. Heath takes Susan to the theatre.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

The curtain had risen on the first act when Susan and Ernest Heath drifted down the aisle of the theatre. More than one head turned to look at the tall girl in the regally simple wrap of brown

fur. There were one or two whispers as Heath was recognised. He had forgotten his original caution and desire to avoid publicity in his eagerness to take Susan about. Although impatient for the marriage to take place he had agreed to wait for her aunt's return.

Now, conscious of the craned necks and the whispers, he felt only a glow of pride. The girl was so beautiful. She had a look of race about her.

Susan leaned forward absorbed in the play, and the man watched her with interest. It was not until the curtain dropped again and the lights came on that Susan drew a deep breath and returned to reality.

"You like it?"

"Oh, so much!" The colour came up in her cheeks and her eyes were starry. "Don't you?"

"Well, it's all right, only all British comedies sound alike."

"They may to you but I've never seen one before and I think it's wonderful," she confided with a happy little laugh.

Susan loosened her wrap and leaned back, looking about her for the first time. As by a magnet her gaze was drawn to a little group in the box just to the left. Irresistibly her eyes clung to the three people balancing on the little gilt chairs. Surely she knew that girl in black, with her bright hair combed demurely back from a brow of camellia whiteness. Susan's heart plunged as she realized the identity of the fair-haired young man whose head was turned away from her. Try as she might, she could not take her eyes away.

As though impelled by Susan's gaze the man turned and stared at her. For the fraction of an instant something quivered between them. Then the girl inclined her head with dignity and looked swiftly away. Her pulses were racing now. This was just as she had dreamed.

"Someone you know" Heath asked curiously, noting the quality of her bow.

Susan never knew how she answered him. She was fighting desperately for control. All her hard won defences seemed shattered by this encounter.

Meantime, in the box another little drama was being enacted. The bright haired girl in black had followed the direction of Bob Dunbar's glance and had seen him flush. She laughed coolly.

"Oh—ho, your little friend turns up again!" she said. "Who's that with her?" Denise leaned forward, frankly staring. At the glimpse of Heath's aristocratic profile she whistled softly. "As I live and breathe," she murmured, "she's barged Old Prosperity herself!" She saw Bob's spine stiffen and returned with zest to the attack. "Look what she's wearing," she said enjoying herself thoroughly now. "Sahlest Mother said when she was in Madame Elsa's, the other day the talk was that old Heath had a girl around town now."

Piercingly Bob interrupted her. "Don't be a fool," he said. "You know Susan Carey isn't that kind."

Denise shrugged. "You know more about her than I do,Smarty." She turned her attention to the other member of the party, a youth who looked like a professional tango dancer.

The dark youth said something that made Denise laugh immoderately just as the curtain rose again. So far as Susan was concerned, that second act was a muddle. People babbled in high British voices of unimportant nothings, and slim, sophisticated girls lounged in, strewing epigrams about.

In her heart the old, dull pain throbbed again and yet she was not sorry she had seen Bob. She had been living, she felt, for this hour. Her whole being was keyed up to the possibility of seeing again that beloved face. She would suffer for it but that was unimportant.

During the second interval Susan determinedly kept her eyes away from the box, but just as the lights went off, quite against her will, her eyes flashed in that direction. The box was empty. They had gone. The world suddenly went grey. What she had expected she scarcely knew. Perhaps she had hoped against hope that as the well-dressed throngs milled out into the foyer her

The illustration depicted above is an accurately drawn chart showing at a glance the unique, and yet steady and sound growth of our rent collecting department during the last five years. The actual figures showing the volume of business done and rentals collected on foreign houses during that period are 1927-508, 1928-675, 1929-2548, 1930-3203, 1931-4413.

This most satisfactory increase in the volume of business handled is the natural result of the policy we have adopted in every phase of our activities. That this policy has met with the approval of our clients is reflected not only in the increase in the volume of business handled by our foreign houses rent collections, but to an even greater extent in the department's handling of the affairs of Chinese houses rent collections.

The collection of rentals often carries with it the management of estates, and this intimate relationship with landlords makes The China Realty Company the logical place for property owners to come when they need help in the financing of improvements to their properties, and sound advice in the management, sale, or buying of properties and estates.

Another phase of our activities has to do with the investing public, that is, the holders of our 8% debentures on which the interest is payable semi-annually. We believe that those who furnish the capital on which the company is enabled to do increased business should participate in the profits—that the most successful concerns of the future will be those who recognize this principle—that even banks will allocate to depositors a part of profits earned on their money over and above current rates of interest. As our balance sheets show quite plainly, the proceeds from the sale of our debentures is not used for the purchase of real estate. AS WE ARE NOT SPECULATORS, but for investment in first class mortgages, amply secured not only by the value of the land pledged as security but as a further security the fact that the debentures constitute a first claim on the total assets of the company. An analysis of the figures involved shows that every debenture has behind it assets equal to three times its value.

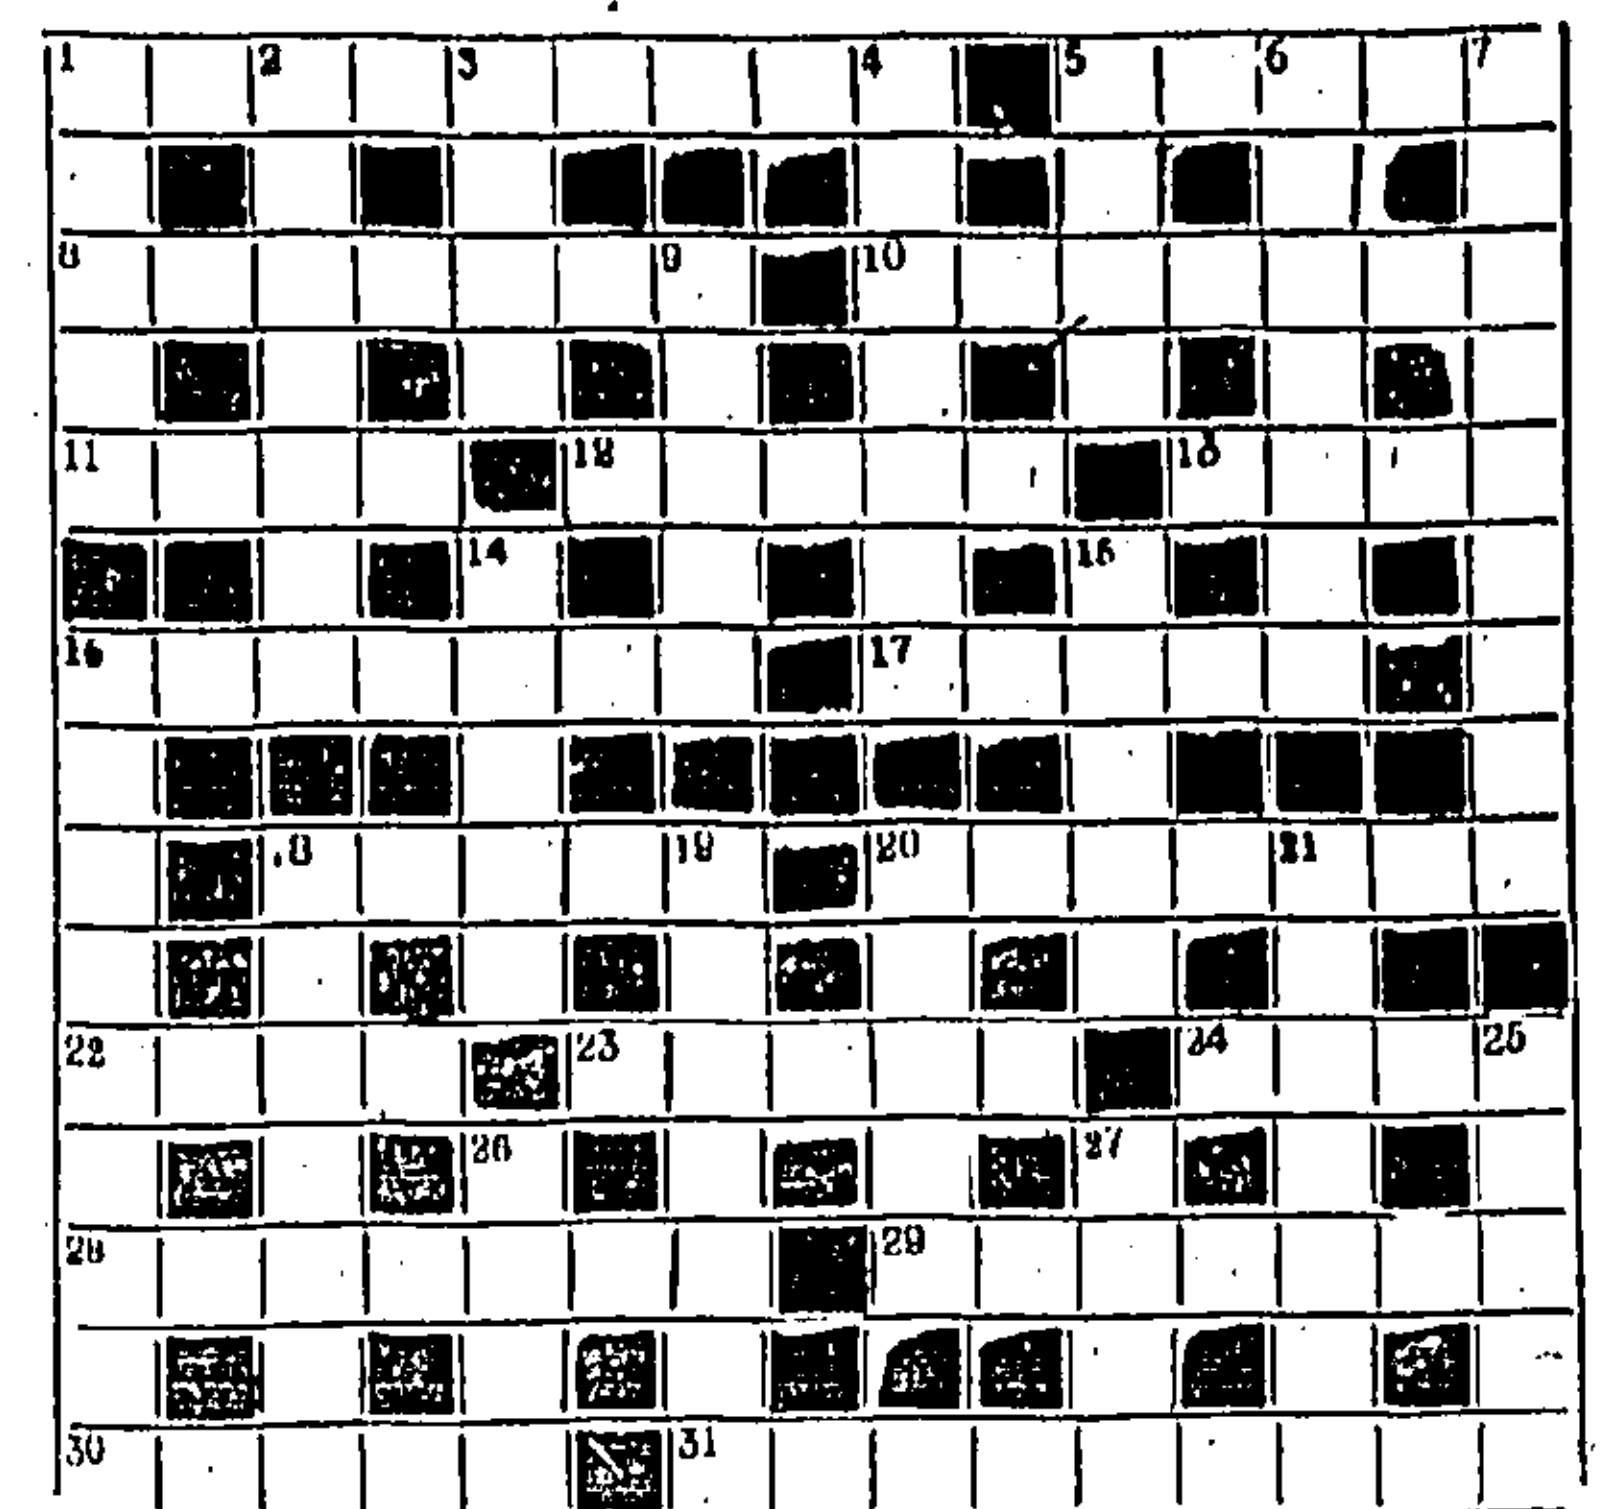

Were it not for the position of confidence gained through the consistent policy to which we have adhered, and the volume of unsolicited business which has come as a result, we could not thus complete our service by offering the man who wishes to invest in debentures an opportunity to share with us in the prosperity of our business by paying debenture interest of 8% and remember, 8% VERSUS 6% MEANS ONE THIRD MORE INCOME!

TAI TUNG COLLEGE PRIZE GIVING.

MADAME TSAI TING-KAI DISTRIBUTES AWARDS

Madame Tsai Ting-kai, wife of General Tsai Ting-kai, distributed the awards at the Tai Tung College prize distribution held in the King's Theatre yesterday morning.

Among those on the platform were the Headmaster, Mr. H. C. Ching, B.A., Mr. Ma Man-fai and several members of the tutorial staff of the College.

The School report was as follows: "The total number of students enrolled during 1931 was 325 as against 256 in 1930 and 110 in 1929. Every year an increasing number of students came to apply for admission, but owing to the limited space available we were compelled to refuse many of them. We took care to keep our entrance examination very strict as many students came with the intention of getting into a higher class than they were fit for.

"Our staff consisted of five University graduates, three undergraduates, and six other experienced teachers making a total of 14. Dr. K. F. Woo was kind enough to be our medical adviser. "Very few changes took place during the year. The only changes were that Mr. H. Wilson left in March and Mr. Yeh Tak-ee, graduate of the Hongkong University, joined us in September.

Judging from the results of the examinations, the work may be said to be quite satisfactory.

class 1 and class 2 were substituted by the University Matriculation and Junior local Examinations respectively. In November, 17 students from our class 1 sat for the Matriculation Examination and of these 2 were awarded Matriculation Certificates. 22 students from class 2 sat for the Junior Local Examination and of these four passed, and Ho Yue-lau obtained distinction in Arithmetic.

"I wish here to express my sincerest thanks to Madame Tsai Ting-kai who has done us a great honour by consenting to come to distribute the prizes for us this morning, to those who have so generously given us books or other useful articles for prizes, to our friends who have contributed to the items of our concert, to the management of King's Theatre for the kind permission to use their premises, and to the parents and guardians of students for their presence and interested attention."

After the distribution of prizes by Madame Tsai, Mr. Ma Man-fai addressed the gathering in Cantonese.

COMING GERMAN ELECTION

Public attention has been so
much centred on the Lausanne
Conference of late that the im-
minence of the General Election,
which takes place in Germany on July 31st, has been largely overlooked. The present Chancellor,
Herr von Papen, is regarded by
competent German observers to be
a stop-gap, in which connexion it
is worth noting that his Cabinet
has been officially described as a transitional Ministry of non-party
experts whose task is to steer
the country past the coming election. For the moment, the reactionaries are in power, but it remains to be seen what will happen
when the voice of the nation
makes itself heard. There is undoubtedly a move in certain quarters for the restoration of the Monarchy, so much so, indeed,
that the new Minister of the Interior proclaimed in a speech recently that a Monarchy was the
most suitable form of government
for a country in Germany's position.

Looking at the situation generally, there is no doubt that the
forces of reaction have been helped by the breach between the So-
leaders. However, the Social Democrats appear determined to
make a big fight in the coming
election, and they are still a
factor to be reckoned with. The
internal situation is most complicated. In the States, as in the Reich, no party has a majority
which makes majority government possible; in the States the
old Ministers have mostly carried on as a so-called "business
government." This has very naturally caused great indignation
among the Nazis in Prussia, who
have become by far the largest
party in the Prussian Landtag.
For some time it has been on the
cards that a Reich Commissioner
would therefore be appointed by
the Central Government to rule Prussia. Since it is clear that Hitler has an understanding with the new Government, by which he
gives them general support in return for the promise of a free
hand in the administration of Prussia (and here the importance

of the control of the police system
of Prussia can never be ex-
aggerated), the liveliest apprehension is aroused. Meanwhile,
the recent appointment of the von Papen Government has aroused
anxiety in the South. In Bavaria
the Catholic People's Party is just
stronger than the Nazis, and
there has been an angry outcry—
why should Bavarians endure the
dictation of East Prussian landowners? The interview recently
in Berlin between the President
and the Chancellor on the one
Bavaria, Baden and Wurttemberg
on the other did not clear the air.
Obviously the principle of Reich
Commissioners, and the liberation
of the Storm Detachments, remained distasteful to the visitors.

At the moment, nothing definite
Government can with difficulty be
termed either popular or constitutional; its members represent,
though not specifically, the Nationalist party, whose failure
in recent elections has been striking. Yet by posing as saviours of
the Fatherland Herr von Papen
and his colleagues are momentarily riding the Nazi flood, while
receiving the support of the industrial magnates whom they do
not seem to have bothered to consult. Though Hitler is on cordial
terms with Big Business, it is in-
disputable that his movement is
basically anti-capitalist; his most
able spokesman, Gregor Strasser,
represents an important and interesting Left wing in the Party,
and it remains to be seen
whether a Nazi split can be indefinitely postponed. There are all manner of possibilities in the situation. The voting on July 31st may well have a tremendous influence not only on German politics but on those of Europe as
well.

The Irish Problem.

The dispute between the Irish
Government and Whitehall already contained elements so dis-
quieting that the abject failure
of Mr. Norton's compromise intervention could scarcely make
matters worse. It is none the less deplorable. The satisfaction widely expressed both in England
known that Mr. Ramsay Mac-
Donald's invitation to Mr. de Valera had been accepted, revealed
the sincere desire of both countries to end an unseemly and unnecessary squabble. The abandonment of all effort to reach a
settlement after a talk lasting
three hours exposed irrespon-
sibility unmitigated by the fact,
now apparent, that both parties
went into the conference with
prepared to depart from his
former stand. Mr. Ramsay Mac-Donald should have known Mr. de Valera better. The Irish leader
should have been aware that the Englishman is never more difficult to move than when he has
assumed an air of sanctimonious
righteousness and rectitude. As
in every stage of the development
of the unhappy relations now subsisting between England and the Irish Free State, both sides are almost equally to blame. British
politicians, not one of whom appears to have the haziest knowledge of Irish psychology, thought
they could frighten Ireland into submission by threats of economic
pressure, and succeeding only in
stirring passions in Ireland which
most people thought were latent
if not dead, felt compelled to act
upon the threat when it failed of
its purpose, simply and solely for
the preservation of their dignity.
And the serious aspect of the
land annuities issue might easily
have been avoided had not the old Imperialism raced in to defend
the sanctity of the Oath, when it
did not warrant the slightest fuss.
The point of substance was whether the Free State intended to stand loyally by its undertaking to remain within the British Commonwealth of Nations. The Oath is merely a form of words
of no particular importance. If
Mr. de Valera, stubborn and
suspicious, chose the wrong
method of its removal, an ounce
of tact could have turned it into

During a fight between two boatmen
at the Mongkok Ferry Wharf yester-

ment.

Mr. Kinnard, an overseer of the Public Works Department, has reported to the police the theft of six
lengths of one-inch zinc piping from
the lower dam at Aberdeen on Saturday morning.

A reminder is given that a Service
men's dance will be held on the
Y.M.C.A., Kowloon, this evening.
Should the weather prove inclement,
dancing will take place in the concert
hall.

Whilst preparing a charge of dynamite at a quarry near Crem-er Street, Tai Kok Tsui, yesterday a foreman of the Fu Long firm of contractors received severe injuries when the
charge exploded unexpectedly. He was taken to the Kowloon Hospital
in a serious condition.

Three boatpeople were charged before the Hon. Comdr. Ho, at the Marine Court this morning, with
having caused obstruction at the Mongkok Ferry Wharf by mooring
their boats within 35 feet of the
wharf. They admitted the offence
and were each $10, or one week's
imprisonment.

In connexion with a report made
to the police on Saturday morning
by a Chinese married woman of Huanghom who stated that she had been held up and robbed in Chatham Road, outside Holt's Wharf, it has
now been ascertained that the report
was false. The woman has now
admitted to the police that there had
been no hold-up and that she had
hidden the money, which she had
collected from Holt's Wharf on behalf
of her husband, to avoid her creditors.

The Villa Rose mystery, one of the cleverest of A. E. W. Mason's human stories, is the subject of the feature
film at the King's Theatre and provides excellent entertainment. The identity of the murderer is adroitly
concealed without resort to red-
herrings, for which reason the film
will give a greater measure of enjoyment to those who have not had the pleasure of reading the book. Austin Trevor plays the part of Hannu with
his usual polish and conviction, in a double sense, while Richard Cooper
fills the role of the tyro detective,
providing humorous relief along
lines perhaps a trifle libellous to the original Ricardo, but nevertheless
satisfying.

served merely to concentrate behind Mr. de Valera a strength
which would not have been more than half-heartedly applied in
more carefully chosen circumstances. Ireland now purposes a tariff war with Britain and
genuine Irish loyalty to the Commonwealth is indefinitely postponed.

marry that Mr. Truesdale."

OUR HECTIC HERITAGE BY "THIRTY"

"Let us eat, drink, and be merry
—for to-morrow we shall be out of a job!"

THAT, I think, represents the
attitude of most of us who can
afford it and who are not already tramping the streets looking
for a chance to grind out a livelihood. Our elders can inspire us
with no better objective, for the reasons I have tried to explain in
previous articles.

Even if civilisation is crumbling,
what is the use of being depressed
about it? It has not given such
advantages that we shall miss it as much as our elders. And it is not
do about it in the meanwhile. Even
if we got ourselves elected to Parliament, we realise that the Party Whips believe that little
M.P.'s should be seen and not
heard. Though elderly politicians
are helpless, their dignity must be
preserved at all costs, and the younger men "kept in their place."

I suggested to a Minister the
other day that it might be helpful
to let the younger members be heard
more frequently, if only to "blow
off steam." He was horrified.
"The front benchers," he assured
me with the pontifical air of one elaborating an argument, "would not like it." I have no doubt that he
of civilisation will be postponed because "the front benchers would
not like it."

We regard politics, then, as a farce. With every prospect of collapse there is no point in taking
what our fathers called "a career"
at all seriously and, in any case,
why exert oneself to make money to
pay to the politicians to buy votes
with?

The shallow squabbles of the Churches about dogma and ritual
do not satisfy any deep spiritual
urge or curiosity we may have.
Even the pleasant counter-attraction of scientific theories that the Universe is a bursting example of
pure mathematics, and that the inmates of the local zoo are our distant cousins, does not inspire us to
any enthusiastic conceptions of life.
Each day brings fresh evidence
that theorists of every kind have
been hopelessly wrong, so there is little inducement to study. Can we
be blamed, then, for making the
most of life while we can and for
not taking it, our elders, or ourselves, too seriously?

Besides, our outlook compels us
to regard the problems that harass
our elders from a different and
more practical angle.

Take, for example, the great problem of over-production—the
phenomenon of starvation in the midst of plenty. From this it is clear to us that the whole distri-
butive mechanism of world commerce is founded on entirely false
principles. We have a shrewd suspicion where the fault lies, but
all that matters to us is the question of whether it can be remedied.
And we see at once that the only
people who might be able to remedy the defect are those who
make their living out of it—and
that the cure would entail a drastic
reduction in their incomes. Hu-

man nature being what it is, we
overtake them rather than do anything about it.

So why should we waste time and
breath, like the economists, with
their almost daily invention of new
jargon and incantations to explain
the curious crumbling in the feet
Finance?

We know the idol has feet of
clay and, to be given new feet, will
have to be taken down for repairs,
with a considerable loss of prestige
and temple revenues. We know
the idol and its worshippers would
rather perish miserably than have
that happen. Meanwhile, why should we get hot and bothered?

Take another great problem of
the day—War Debts—which dis-
closes to us one of the peculiar de-lusions of the economist in the
matter of wealth and the even more
peculiar delusions of the statesman
in the matter of ethics.

To us it is clear that the wealth
represented by War Debts ceased
to exist almost immediately after
it was created. It was blown out
of existence, was worn out, or merely disappeared. Yet this wealth is regarded in the same light as
capital sunk in some tangible,
existing, earning enterprise, like a railway or a great liner. But in
six years' time conversion loans
apart, we shall have paid for it
twice over. Even the sound business principle of allowance for de-
Debts.

Whatever one's theories of the nature of wealth, it is obvious that
one cannot regard wealth that still
exists in the same light as wealth
that has ceased to exist. Though
it may be argued that the present
post-war state of the world is an
asset, there is clearly some
economic fallacy here, which ought
to have been foreseen.

But there is also an ethical
as something more valuable than
life. The State did not hesitate to ask the manhood of the nation to
give its life freely and without condition. But wealth was treated as
a more valuable commodity and
only borrowed at 5 per cent. interest
—a curious reflection on the outlook

On Armistice Day the State
rest of the year it pays interest on
vanished wealth. If Socialists are
tempted to regard this as an argument for Socialism, let it always
be remembered that Socialist mun-
ition-workers, who were selling
their labour, never hesitated to demand wages far higher than those
of the fighting men who were merely giving their lives.

If it is the official view of civilisa-
tion that death is of less account
than dividends, the only possible
deduction that we can make is that
there is not much point in living,
because it is clear that our chances
of wealth for the remainder of our
lives are negligible. If that is not
the official view of civilisation, why
do the leaders of civilisation go on
time chanting smug phrases about
the horrors of war, and the "sanctity
of human life"?

Naturally, we cannot take them
or their outlook, at all seriously.
Confronted with a world capable
of entertaining what we consider
such illogical misconceptions and of
tolerating for so long such colossal
structural defects—a world run by
men who are so patently out of
their depth and blind to the faults
of the machine they control—we
see little chance of their being able
to effect running repairs. Even if
they knew how to do that, they
would have to stop the machine to
free its seized bearings. But, of course, they have allowed things to
go too far.

The only reply to our question
as to what they propose to do is a vague theory that, although they do
not know what is really wrong with
it, the machine will right itself
without any effort on their part
except for such gentle words of encouragement as they may offer at
the Lausanne and other conferences.

A machine that will eliminate its
own structural defects and correct
the fallacies of its designers, with-
out those in charge of it being conscious of either, or being prepared to take it to pieces and make drastic alterations, is a phenomenon outside our experience, beyond
our understanding. We may be forgiven, therefore, for replying to
these optimistic travellers' tales of
our elders that "there ain't no such
animal."

Meanwhile, till they produce the
phenomenon to rebut our in-
credulity, there is nothing for us to
do except to remain cheerful.

CONTESTED*APPEAL OF FRENCH BANK OPENS*HOUSE MORTGAGE

Long and involved legal argument is likely in the Full Court appeal of the Banque Franco-Chinoise pour le Commerce et l'Industrie against a judgment of Mr. Justice Wood.

In the original action, the plaintiff (Mrs. Chu Shuk) claimed that her property, mortgaged to the bank, was sold without her consent, in contravention of an agreement and that it was sold at a price grossly under its value.

Mr. Justice Wood awarded Mrs. Chu Shuk $42,000 and granted her application for costs of the action. The present case is the appeal of Mr. Justice Wood.

Sir Peter Grain (Shanghai) presided. With him on the Bench were Sir Joseph Kemp and Mr. Justice Wood.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C. and Mr. R. C. H. Lim appeared for the defendant appellant bank. Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C. and Mr. H. G. Sheldon appeared for the plaintiff respondent.

MR. JENKIN OPENS.

"This is an appeal against the judgment of Mr. Justice Wood, when he was acting Chief Justice in March last year," said Mr. Jenkin opening his case. "Under this judgment, he awarded the plaintiff $42,000 damages on the ground that the bank, while holding certain of her property under mortgage had wrongfully and negligently sold that property."

The main contest between the parties, continued Mr. Jenkin, would be the proper construction of the deed of mortgage and other documents.

The plaintiff was a widow and at all material times was the owner of certain property known as No. 6, Ko Shing Street.

Mr. Jenkin here mentioned another person who, he said, would figure materially in the case. He was Shau Fan-tan. It would be seen that the lady had a certain amount of interest in him for when he became compendore for a man named Pittendridge she named him by depositing certain documents with Pittendridge.

MORTGAGE TRANSFER.

Towards the end of 1928, Pittendridge, who was a local merchant, was apparently in need of bank assistance and he applied to the French Bank for facilities. This was granted on the condition that the woman, whose property was on deposit to secure Pittendridge's compendore should transfer the mortgage to the French Bank.

The plaintiff was agreeable and the mortgage was executed on March 5th 1928.

Mr. Jenkin detailed the five covenants entered into between the parties when this transaction was put through.

One clause laid down that the property should not be sold until one month after a demand had been made upon the plaintiff, or in the event of a default in interest payment.

"It was held by the trial judge," said Mr. Jenkin "that there should have been no sale until one month after a demand had been made upon the plaintiff. My argument will be that the sale was in proper order because of a default in the payment of interest or under one or other of the covenants."

Under the deed, the plaintiff had the power to appoint an agent or nominee to act for her, and on December 5th she notified the bank that she had appointed Shau to be her agent.

Pittendridge and Shau signed a promissory note on the French Bank for $25,000, which was the amount the mortgage was limited to under the covenant. On the same day, Shau gave the bank a specimen copy of his signature.

Pittendridge, who had no funds in the bank drew a cheque on the bank for $15,700. Not only was it signed by him, but Shau's name was also attached.

The only banking facility ever granted, Pittendridge was the honouring of cheques drawn on an overdraft account. Cheques of that nature were drawn between December 6th, 1928, and February, 26th, 1929—fifteen cheques in all less than three months.

Two points will now arise, said Mr. Jenkin. They are—(1) Whether or not that facility by way of overdraft is a facility within the terms of the deed. Presuming that it is, (2) Did the signature of Shau on the cheque amount to consent in writing to a facility within the meaning of the mortgage? On this point the trial judge found in my favour."

Mr. Jenkin then commenced an examination of the correspondence which passed between the parties.

UNDESIRABLE*SEDITIONARY PAPERS CHARGE

Yup Yuk, alias Yup Fun, alias James Jameson, who was intercepted by the Hongkong police while passing through to Shanghai on the B. I. Tilawa as a deportee from Calcutta, was charged on remand before Mr. Wynne-Jones, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with the possession of seditious papers.

Translations of the documents were handed up to the Bench and particular attention was drawn to three pages written in red ink. Objection was taken to such slogans as "Down with Imperialism," "Down with British Rule," and other sentences which would appear to advocate violence in association with revolutionary movements.

His Worship stated that in the past they had considered in dealing with these cases, that what was seditious at one time might not be seditious at another, also that what was seditious in one place might not be so in another.

Mr. T. Murphy, A. S. P., in leaving the case in his Worship's hands, pointed out that they had received no information regarding the accused's antecedents. Apparently, the Indian authorities, without attempting to look for those documents, decided that he was an undesirable, and were content with issuing an ultimatum for him to leave the country.

It was true that he was bound for China and the language on the documents was of that country, continued Mr. Murphy, but the fact that he had been expelled was sufficient reason for him to have done away with the documents, on starting a new leaf as he had vowed in his diary. The police believed that he had been associated with revolutionary movements for some time.

Accused was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

LEAVES*MRS. TAYLOR SAILS FOR HOME

An old and respected resident in the person of Mrs. A. M. Taylor, wife of senior Sanitary Inspector A. K. Taylor, accompanied by her youngest son Douglas and her daughter Mary, left the Colony on Saturday by the P. and O. Rajputana.

For the past three years, Mrs. Taylor has been in poor health and her medical adviser has now ordered a complete change. That she will have a speedy recovery to good health will be the wish of her many friends.

For many years Mrs. Taylor has been employed as housekeeper at the Hongkong Hotel where she has done yeoman service in re-organising the housekeeping department. She also had charge of the department at Repulse Bay and the Peninsula Hotel. At the latter place she took over and thoroughly organised the department on its opening a few years ago.

Being endowed with marked organising ability, exceptional energy and a genial disposition, Mrs. Taylor enjoyed the full confidence of the management, the respect of the guests and the loyal co-operation of the whole staff.

During the war Mrs. Taylor, who is a highly qualified hospital sister, performed valuable services to the Colony on the Government Civil Hospital staff. Her professional services were also greatly in demand by private medical practitioners.

NEW ANTI-BANDIT SCHEME*PEOPLE MAKE GOOD
THE LOSSES

Wuchow, July 15. The military authorities of North-Western Kwangsi have enforced a ruling which is said to be very effective in bandit suppression. When there is a robbery in a certain section of the district under the supervision of these officials, a fine equivalent to the amount stolen in money and property is levied on the people of the section under question. This amount is collected by the military and returned to the person who reported the loss. This ruling was recently put into practice and the amount of the money stolen by a band of brigands was returned to the party robbed.

In an attempt to make the Kwangsi Army more efficient, some divisions have put into effect very strenuous measures in regard to the behaviour of soldiers. Opium smoking, gambling, and of Cholera in the Colony? (4) To whom did the Medical Officer of Health intend to refer by the expression "Superintendent of the Kennedy Town District?" Is it not the fact that Dr. S. W. Phoon, the Medical Superintendent of the Tung Wah Hospital, is in connexion with the present epidemic the Superintendent of the Tung Wah Infectious Diseases Hospital in Kennedy Town?

SIXTEEN CASES.

(5) Is it not a fact that the sixteen cases referred to by the Medical Officer of Health were cases which had been sent to the Kennedy Town Infectious Hospital by the Tung Wah Authorities for observation, and that the reports made to the Medical Officer of Health were made by Dr. E. Q. Lim who is working under Dr. Phoon as Superintendent of the Kennedy Town Infectious Hospital?

(6) Is it not a fact that there has been absolutely no failure to notify cases on the part of the Tung Wah Hospital?

MR. H. S. STATEMENTS.

(7) Will the Medical Officer of Health be good enough to say whether or not the following statements, which were attributed to him as having been made by him in the course of a newspaper interview, and on which the newspaper comments above mentioned were expressly stated to have been based, were in fact made by him? "The sixteen cases reported on Tuesday, were all from the Tung Wah Hospital. They were discovered by the Superintendent of the Kennedy Town district who had them immediately removed to the Kennedy Town Hospital. There is no doubt that those cases should have been notified, and the failure to do so can only be laid down to omission or ignorance on the part of those responsible. Any person, layman or practitioner, is compelled to notify cholera, and under the circumstances, the people responsible for not notifying the authorities would be liable. This is not, however, a matter for my department. I don't think any further steps will be taken, in view of the fact that the cases were discovered."

(8) If the answer to question 7 is in the affirmative, does the Medical Officer of Health now agree that the statements quoted above, which reflect on the Tung Wah Hospital Authorities, are absolutely unjustified by the facts of the case?

(9) If the answer to question 7 is in the affirmative, will the Medical Officer of Health be kind enough to elucidate his somewhat cryptic observation "This is not, however, a matter for my department?"

D. S. P. (C)ENTERTAINMENT OF SERVICE MEN*OPEN AIR DANCE FOR TO-NIGHT

Since the closing of the "Cheero Club", the greater part of the work of organising entertainments and recreational facilities for Service men has devolved upon the Naval, Military and Air Force Section of the European Y.M.C.A., which has adapted itself admirably to meet the heavier demand.

In addition to the more spacious premises allotted to this section in the European Y.M.C.A. building, the Cheero Club Library has been transferred to Kowloon, where this collection of some 700 volumes is available daily to men of the Services. The swimming bath is also placed at the men's disposal at certain hours and is in great demand.

The general organisation of this Section is in the hands of an enthusiastic Committee, under the Chairmanship of Mr. F. H. Crapnell, with Mr. A. W. Ingram as Secretary, and is inaugurating a regular programme of functions, to be introduced gradually as the Winter season approaches. At present, whilst drives are held on alternate Mondays, at which attendances, averaging 120 players, speak well for the future success of this Committee's activities.

To-night a new note is being struck in the holding of an open-air dance on the tennis courts, behind the Y.M.C.A. building, which area is being specially decorated and illuminated for the occasion. Dancing will continue from 8.30 p.m. until midnight, the music being rendered by Ronnie True's inimitable "Cheero Band." Tickets will be on sale at the door, at $1 each, including refreshments. A large attendance is anticipated, and all Service men are cordially invited.

London, July 17.

It is officially announced that the Government has made another offer to Mr. de Valera, that on agreement in regard to the terms of reference for arbitration, or even for further discussion, and on the payment of the money involved, the special duties would be suspended. The offer remains open.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI TENNIS

NEW CHINESE DOUBLES CHAMPIONS

HOLDERS DETHRONED

Shanghai, July 12.

The final of the Chinese open tennis doubles championship took place yesterday afternoon at the China National Amateur Athletic Federation. C. D. Kuo and Y. Y. Kuo, winners of the 1931 title, were dethroned by two youthful college players, D. K. Yui and Guy Chen, who won in straight sets at 7-5, 6-0 and 6-3. Yui was the 1930 Shanghai junior champion and is at present a student at the University of Shanghai, while Chen reached the final of last year's hard-court tournament at the French Club and was beaten by W. A. H. Duff. He is now studying at St. John's University. Both are pupils of Gordon Lum, who officiated at yesterday's final.

EX-CHAMPIONS START WELL.

The ex-champions started off in fine form and took the first two games before Yui and Chen could get set. The latter pair won the third game, but still lagged behind until the ninth, when they rolled off four games in succession to win the opening set at 7-5. In the second set, play was very one-sided, as Yui and Chen ran away with it without conceding a single game. In the third set the losers improved, but they lacked the ability to win, giving the set to their conquerors at 6-3.

The winning couple played a sound game with strong services and unbreakable net play. They hung to the net like leeches and broke their opponents' teamwork to pieces. The two Kuos were all at sea, not knowing what to do. Their shots mostly went straight to the winners' rackets, and only on rare occasions could they win with accurate passing shots.

AMERICA CLAIMS NEW TITLE

New York, July 11.

British Champion to Retire

London, July 11.

Miss Enid Wilson, the English lady golf champion, is retiring from competitive golf after her visit to the United States in the autumn in a final attempt to win the American Women's Open.

Miss Wilson is Great Britain's foremost player. She is only 22 years of age. It is a remarkable age to contemplate a retirement from the game in which she is so distinctive a star. Just now there seems to be rather a dearth of brilliant young women golfers and it seems a thousand pities that the benefit of Miss Wilson's years of studious application to the game should be lost.

Without question she has raised the standard of women's golf.

Bremen, July 11.

The German, Latvian and Czechoslovakian Olympic teams have sailed aboard the liner "Europa" for America. The German squad is composed of 70 athletes while five others, including the German Marathon runner de Bruyn, will join the party in America. The team is headed by the famous track performers Jonath, Koerning and Dr. Peltzer, the two scullers Bulitz and Boetzelen who recently won the Diamond Sculls in the Henley regatta, as well as by Sergeant Hirschfeld who holds the world-record in putting the weight.

It appears that Miss Dorothy Poynton of the Los Angeles A.C. is about to be strong armed into an Olympic diving title if this dryland practice with Marion P. Betty, former amateur weightlifting and light heavy wrestling champion, amounts to anything. Dorothy holds the national low board championship and is a leading contender for the high board and high platform titles in the Olympic events.

Two British drivers, Mr. L. P. Driscoll and Mr. A. C. Bartelli, driving a British Aston Martin, scored a triumphant success in the great 24-hour speed battle over the Le Mans circuit by winning the challenge cup of the Touring Club de l'Ouest, offered for competition between the drivers that made the best performance in last year's race over the same circuit.

The results were:
1. Aston-Martin: Driven by Messrs. Driscoll and Bartelli, who covered 1,436 miles at an average speed of about 60 miles per hour.
2. Cabriolet: Wm. Labrick and Cabantous.
3. Talbot: Messrs. Brian Lewis and Tim Rose Richards.

Alfa Romeos won the first two places in the Grand Prix, and the Talbot of Lewis and Richards was third.

The heat was tremendous and the race was considered by some the most gruelling in the history of the track. Of the 26 starters, only nine finished and no fewer than six of the fastest cars had crashed within the first three hours of the 24 hours' struggle.

There were six crashes, as follows: In the first lap a Bentley driven by a Frenchman, M. Trepoix, got out of control on a corner and tore into the ditch at 60 miles an hour. The driver escaped with minor injuries. Mr. Brian Lewis in the Talbot saw the cloud of dust from the other side of the track, and just managed to avoid the wreckage by a piece of superb driving.

A moment later one of the Alfa Romeos took an S-bend at 90 miles an hour and left the road completely and leapt into a slump of trees. The driver, an Italian, was thrown out and escaped injury. Within two hours, he was racing round the track again.

Ten minutes later, another Alfa Romeo, trying to avoid the crashed Bentley, skidded and crashed into the ditch beside the wreck of the other car. Once again the driver was unhurt.

Then a Stutz crashed in order to avoid killing spectators who had swarmed into the track to examine the wreckage. Later another Alfa Romeo did a triple somersault, again the driver escaped injury. Six serious smash-ups and not one fatal accident.

HERMAN Dix, once a football star at University of Washington, but now wearing Los Angeles Athletic Club's track livery, gave the world's shotputters something to heave at when he beat the world record by a mark of 52 feet 8 1/2 inches. He then tossed left-handed to set a new mark of 93 feet 3 inches for a right-and-left toss.

Shanghai, July 10.

Chinese soccer football season will commence two months earlier this year, according to information from the China National Amateur Athletic Federation. A Summer Football Tournament will be instituted and will start in the middle of August.

Another innovation in the form of an inter-city football competition will be run off simultaneously with the Summer Football League on the grounds of the C.N.A.A. in Rue du Pire Froc.

Two silver cups have been donated by two enthusiasts. It is understood that the football committee appointed by the C.N.A.A. met at the Great China Restaurant in Szechuen Road, when Messrs. T. T. Mo, K. V. Voong, T. H. Woo, S. C. Tsai and S. Y. Lo were requested to attend.

British Women Beat Records

London, July 9.

Two world's records were broken during the British women's athletic championships at Stamford Bridge today.

Miss Johnson, of the Bolton Harriers, did the 100 yards in eleven seconds dead, beating the previous record of 11.5 sec. held by Mile. Radidbo of France. The other new record was established in the 400 yards, when Miss Halstead of Bury covered the distance in 56.4-5 sec., beating her own previous record of 58.4-5 sec.

Melbourne, July 9.

Racing history was made at Flemington to-day when Precious, the first horse owned and trained by a woman to achieve such a feat, won the Grand National Steeplechase over three miles and one furlong, Australia's biggest jumping event. Nauru ran second, while Moss Trooper, the 1930 winner, came in third.

Archeson, the favourite, dropped dead after passing the finishing post in fifth position.

CHOLERA DANGER

DR. LI TO ASK QUESTIONS IN SANITARY BOARD

Dr. Li Shu-fan will ask the following questions at the next meeting of the Sanitary Board to be held to-morrow:

(i) In the Head of the Sanitary Department aware that the drying of slaughtered animals' hair, etc., is being done on certain pieces of land within a radius of 200 yards from the Kennedy Town Infectious Disease Hospital and the Kennedy Town Tung Wah Small-pox Hospital?

(ii) Is the Head of the Sanitary Department aware that, as the result of such drying, flies breed in large numbers, and that such flies and the odour emitted from the drying beds are most objectionable to dwellers in the vicinity?

(iii) In view of the fact that flies are well-known possible cholera-carriers, and in view of the proximity of numerous dwelling houses to the Kennedy Town Infectious Disease Hospital which at present has a comparatively large number of cholera in-patients, will the Head of the Sanitary Department consider what practical steps the Sanitary Department could take to ameliorate the existing conditions, bearing in mind the importance of the removal or mitigation of the flies nuisance within the immediate vicinity to the Hospitals mentioned?

LESSON-SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Life" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible—"These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee. As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." (John 17: 1-3.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, "Jesus said, substantially, 'He that believeth in me shall not see death.' That is, he who perceives the true idea of Life loses his belief in death. He who has the true idea of good loses all sense of evil, and by reason of this is being ushered into the undying realities of Spirit. Such a one abideth in Life—Life obtained not of the body incapable of supporting life, but of Truth, unfolding its own immortal idea. Jesus gave the true idea of being, which results in infinite blessings to mortals." (p. 324.)

SOCIAL GATHERING.

CATHOLIC YOUNG MEN'S SOCIETY AT HOME

The first "At Home" held by the Catholic Young Men's Society on Saturday night proved to be a tremendous success. The function was originally intended to have been held in the Cathedral compound, but owing to the inclement weather it was held in the Club adjoining the Cathedral.

Among the visitors present were His Grace the Bishop, the Right Rev. Mgr. Henry Valtorta, Rev. Fr. Suarez, Procurator of the Spanish Mission, and several other priests.

The President of the Society, Mr. J. S. Chak, addressed the gathering in Cantonese giving a short history of the Society which was founded ten years ago, and outlining the meaning of its motto, "Prayer, Action and Sacrifice." He concluded by exhorting all Catholic young men to join the Society and to derive the benefits accruing from it.

A programme of Chinese music then followed, the first item being selected pieces by the Yiu Mai Musical Association. This was well received by the gathering, and so was the clever interpretation of Chinese dancing by Miss Hung Sau-wan, which followed. A play, entitled "Patriotism v. Love" concluded the evening's entertainment.

shoulder might brush against Bob's. He would look up and smile. Perhaps he would shake hands. She would give everything she owned at this instant to slip her tingling palm into the grip of his strong fingers. It would be something to remember, something to treasure. But now he had gone and she would not see him.

What had happened was this. Denise and the Spanish youth had seen the play before and Bob, who was raging in his heart at the conversation touching Susan, was quite ready to concur in their proposal to go on some place and dance. He wanted overwhelmingly to hurt someone. Since he could not hurt Susan he turned the battery of his sarcastic fury upon his two companions.

Denise ordered the taxi driver to stop. "Look here, if you don't like us you know what you can do," she said crudely. "Bobby's in a beast of a temper," she explained to the other man. "I stepped on his pet corn and he doesn't like it. Rico and I want to go places and have fun. If you're going to grab the party you'd better get out."

Bob bowed low to her. "That's all right with me," he said elaborately. "That's fine." The door slammed after him. "If I didn't know he hadn't had a drop I'd say he was drunk," Denise muttered, peering after Dunbar as he sauntered down the street. She was not far from right. The young man was drunk with fury and despair. Passers-by turned to stare at the tall, hatless youth in evening clothes. One or two timid women scuttled anxiously in the direction of a policeman's booth after he passed. His eyes were wild and he was talking to himself.

Without consciously directing his course he turned his steps towards the theatre he had just left. The night was sharply cold but he was not aware of it. As he swung along he discovered that he was carrying an object in the curve of his arm. He examined it and found it was his opera hat. He laughed suddenly and sailed the thing into the middle of the street where it lay on the car tracks.

As he neared the building his steps quickened. The pavement was deserted. Perhaps the play was over and Susan had gone. Ah, that was it! He knew now why he had come back. It was for a glimpse of her, of the girl he had cherished.

"Enshrined! That's good!" he backed about, fighting an old cleaning woman who was trotting along homeward. He had thought Susan everything that was good and pure. In an arc when young men scorned ideals he had built one about this girl. Manlike, he felt now that he had let her for having destroyed his dream. Nevertheless he had to see her. That glimpse of her pearl-pale face through crowded aisles had been tantalizing. He did not mean to speak to her. He only wanted to stand close enough to see the downward flicker of those long lashes, and perhaps to hear the sound of her voice. It was odd how well he remembered everything about this girl. She had a little trick of catching her lower lip in her teeth. He wanted to see her do that. He wanted to look into her eyes again and determine whether they were grey or black. It tormented him to know.

The play was over at last. An attendant came out and hooked the doors open and people drifted out in twos and threes.

Where was she? Had she, too, tired of the comedy and left before it was over? Dunbar's anger turned to apprehension now. He bowed absently to two or three dowagers waiting for their car. Where was she? He had searched for her for weeks and here she had been all the time, playing around with this older man—this man in whose employ she had been. His mouth twisted angrily.

At last he caught a glimpse of her through the crowd. In that sumptuous wrap of petal soft fur Susan looked the very young princess. He might plunge through the crowd to seize her and carry her away as a bandit prince. He might do that—but he wouldn't. If she preferred this sort of thing she could have it. Remembering that night in the lane and her appeal for Heath's protection, Dunbar's mind wandered along in dark morasses. It was all so plain to him now. He had been wrong about her from the start.

The girl looked cool and composed as he watched her. Heath handed her into the car with a decidedly proprietary air. "Damn him!" muttered the boy in the shadow.

The car began to slide away and Dunbar woke to life. The pain throbbed in his breast. He

Tokyo, July 17.
If the League Commission report, which is expected to be handed in to the League of Nations not later than the end of August, recommends the opening of an international conference of the signatories of the Nine Power Treaty, it is generally observed that a head-on collision between Japan and the League will be unavoidable and there will be no other alternative for Japan than to take the initiative in giving prompt recognition to the Manchukuo.

It is also reported from Japanese sources that should the report not be what is expected, the Japanese Government will take up a measure, showing her determination concerning the question of the Dairen Customs.

A Japanese spokesman at the Foreign Office to-day stated that the Japanese principle to Manchuria was unchanged.—Reuter's Special.

Peking, July 17.
Dr. Wellington Koo, who has been on a holiday at Paitaiho for the past fortnight, returned to Tientsin this morning, and will proceed to Tsingtau by train to-night to meet the Lytton Commission.

From Nanking it is reported that Dr. Wellington Koo will be the Chinese delegate at the forthcoming League of Nations Assembly meeting at Geneva.—Reuter.

Tokyo, July 17.
The foreign office has instructed its Charge D'Affaires in Nanking, Mr. Yano, to inform Nanking that Japan is unable to subscribe to the suggested appointment of Mr. Hirokichi Kishimoto, Chief Secretary to the Inspector General of Chinese Customs, as Commissioner of Customs at Dairen in succession to Mr. Fukumoto, on the grounds that the case regarding the dismissal of Mr. Fukumoto has not yet been settled.—Reuter.

Mr. Fukumoto was dismissed for refusing to hand over to the Inspectorate the revenue which the Manchukuo Government is seizing.

Nanking, July 16.
It was learned here to-day that if the protests lodged with the Japanese Government against the seizure of the Customs in Manchuria remains unheeded, the Chinese Government will order all Customs stations south of the Great Wall to collect import duties on all goods destined for Dairen or Manchuria.

Thus any attempt by Manchukuo to levy Customs duties on these imports will have the effect of subjecting them to double taxation.—Reuter.

LAURA GUERITE.

Miss Laura Guerite, the well-known entertainer, scored a brilliant success in her appearance at the Rose Room of the Peninsula Hotel on Saturday evening, a large company of revelers cheering her exceptionally clever turns.

Miss Guerite, who has played in Florenz Zeigfeld's Follies, produced revues and composed songs and lyrics, is still a great artiste, and her extremely clever monologues and witty patter were delivered in her best style.

Opening with an amusing monologue on the modern girl, Miss Guerite next endeavoured to satisfy her enthusiastic audience with an interpretation of her famous "Queens of England," later gave the Italian slave girl, and, finally, in reply to numerous requests and insistent demands from the Rose Room audience, her brilliantly witty monologue, "My Canary."

The occasion was one of the most successful and enjoyable arranged by the enterprising hotel management, and it came as welcome news to those present to learn that it would be repeated on Saturday next when Miss Guerite will introduce some more of her favourite numbers.

He began to run.

"Susan, Susan," he called.

The policeman directing traffic took the young man by the arm. Bob began to laugh mirthlessly. "It's all right," he told the officer. "It's all right." He shook off the detaining hand.

"Too much bad gin," the policeman said to himself, watching the "young swell" stride into the night.

London, July 16.
The death is reported of Field Marshal Lord Plumer, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.B.E., K.V.B., C.B., G.C.V.O.—Reuter.

Herbert Charles Plumer, the British general, was born at Torquay in March 1857, and educated at Eton. In 1876 he joined the York and Lancaster Regiment. He served on the Red Sea coast in 1884 and commanded a mounted regiment in the Matabele war.
Before the South African campaign he was sent out to the Cape on special service and raised the Rhodesian Field Force which he commanded in early stages of the conflict. General Plumer took part in the relief of Mafeking. During the advance a shell burst close to him while he was conferring with his staff. He merely said to an aide: "Kindly tell the artillery officer to be good enough to silence that gun" and resumed his conversation. He acted as leader of various columns and at the end of the campaign was promoted major-general and appointed an A. D. C. to the King. He then commanded a brigade at home and in 1903 the 4th Army Corps. In the latter years he was appointed Quartermaster-General and 3rd military member of the Army Council. From 1906 when he was knighted (K.C.B.) to 1909 he commanded the 15th Division in Ireland. In 1909 he was promoted Lieut. General and in 1911 was appointed to the Northern Command.

At the outset of the great war he led the 5th Army Corps. In 1915 he was promoted full general and given command of the 2nd Army which held the line on the southern side of the Ypres salient. In June, 1917, he won the battle of Messines which removed the German menace to the salient. From the Messines-Wytschaete ridge the Germans had dominated Ypres and the whole of the line from which an Allied offensive in Flanders could start.
For nearly one and a half years trenching had been going on under this ridge and at dawn on June 7 nineteen huge mines were exploded beneath the German lines—the greatest artificial eruption that had ever shattered the earth's crust.
The New Zealanders then carried Messines, the Irish Wytschaete and the Welsh Ostend, while later the Australians pushed on further.
For this victory Plumer was awarded the G.C.B. He then directed with success the operations east of Ypres, after which he was sent in November 1917, to Italy in command of the British force dispatched to aid the Italians in their recovery after the Caporetto disaster, but was recalled to France to lead the 2nd Army just before the German offensive in the spring of 1918. His troops were forced back several miles, but he succeeded in checking the Germans and, when the general advance of the Allies began in August 1918, his army had a large share in recovering Belgian Flanders. For his services during the war he was created Baron Plumer of Messines and Bilton, promoted Field Marshal and given a grant of £30,000.
Plumer had the reputation of being the best tempered general in the army. Once while passing through the sector of the 2nd Army, he saw on a wall some posters of a weekly paper with the legend "No more doddering generals". To a friend he said: "You see these? They mean me. But I leave them there because they amuse the men."

From December 1918, to April 1919 General Plumer commanded the British Army of the Rhine, but in June of that year he was sent to Malta as Governor and Commander-in-Chief, remaining there until 1924 when he retired. After Sir H. Samuel had given up the post of High Commissioner in Palestine, however, General Plumer was prevailed on to succeed him which he did in March, 1925. His unfailing courtesy and cool head proved a great asset in dealing with the conflicting interests of the Zionists and the Arabs. In April 1928, he was also made High Commissioner for Transjordan.

TWO INCIDENTS REPORTED TO THE POLICE

Two motor mishaps, results of the drivers having to avoid running over animals in the roadway, were reported to the Police on Saturday from the New Territories. In one instance a lorry collided with a tree, with considerable damage to the front part of the vehicle.

In notifying the Police of a mishap which occurred on the Taipo Road as a lorry was being driven to Sheung Shui, on Saturday the driver, who is also part owner of the vehicle, stated that he was travelling at a speed of twelve miles an hour and when near the Sha Ning village in the Taipo District he averted to avoid a pig which had run across the road in front of his lorry. The vehicle skidded on the wet surface and collided with a tree. The front axle was broken and the front portion of the lorry badly damaged. The driver received several cuts from flying glass from the wind screen.

Another Mishap.

The second mishap occurred on the Tsun Wan Road, just below the Police Station, where the driver of a public car suddenly stopped to avoid hitting a dog on Friday afternoon. A Kowloon motor bus which was following collided with the rear of the car and caused damage to the bumper and petrol tank.

A European and two Chinese, aboard a motor-boat were forced to dive into the harbour yesterday morning, when the motor-boat was involved in a collision with a steam launch. The three were soon picked up by the launch, and were little the worse for their immersion.

The European engaged the motorboat at Blake Pier to take him to the steamer Lycemur about 10 o'clock, and when in the vicinity of the O. S. K. Wharf, the vessel collided with a Chinese-owned steam launch. The motor-boat, Moonraker No. 3, was badly damaged and sank almost immediately.

Salvage was begun in the afternoon, and was successful, the vessel being taken to Yau-mai for repair.

PROTECTION NEED URGENT

Sir.—With reference to your editorial of the 16th instant regarding the local quack "dentists," I agree with you that it is time the authorities started a campaign with a view to ridding the Colony of these quacks. They took good care to raise the dental registration fee one hundred per cent.
from the 1st January, 1932.

It is a very serious matter, and it is a disgrace to allow these quacks to carry on as they are doing in a British Crown Colony.
I hope at least one of the Unofficial members of the Legislative Council will take up this subject with the authorities.

The public should be grateful to you for taking up this matter in your paper. These quacks are using different poisons, when they don't know anything about material medica, let alone dental operations, etc. I hope the authorities will wake up to the fact that they have a duty to perform, and the public to protect.
Yours, etc.

MERELY CHINESE CUSTOM

BEGGING CHARGES FAIL

The Kowloon Police Court resounded with the cries of three wailing babies this morning when three women were charged with begging at Hung Hom on Saturday.
The defendants admitted asking for rice from a contractor's shop, but said they were not begging.
After a few minutes' questioning by the Court Interpreter, his Worship was informed that Saturday was a festive day among Chinese contractors, and that there was a superstition among the people that on this day if children were fed on rice obtained from contractors, they would have long life.

His Worship: I see. This doesn't happen every day, does it?
Court Interpreter: Oh, no!
His Worship: It seems the police interrupted a Chinese custom. The women were discharged.

"We are going to stay here until the bonus is paid, whether it is next year or 1945," said a spokesman for the jobless war veterans—a group of whom are shown here at a vacated building in Washington. Other pictures on Page Three.
